RAF CAPTURES TOBRUK AIRPORT

By DESMOND TIGHE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY AT BARDIA, Jan. 7—The first vital defense point of Tobruk fell into the hands of swiftly advancing British forces today with the capture of E Adem airport, previously evacuated by the Italians after a terrific hammering by R. A. F. planes.

Fruits of the smashing new British offensive westward from Bardia became known with official announcement that 40 Italian planes stationed at El Adem and rendered unserviceable by RAF bombs had been captured by the British.

While advance units of British light tanks and armored cars hammered the outer defenses of Tobruk, British military officials disclosed that American-built bombers are now playing a prominent role in the air attacks designed to break down Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's last strongholds in North Africa.

Glenn Martin Bombers, it was said, have carried out a number of important reconnaissance flights and performed other vital service. British officials expressed hope the American suply soon will grow into a "steady stream."

BLAST LIBYAN PORTS

These same officials revealed that a large number of unrecorded air battles have occurred. More than 500 Italian machines have been shot down in Africa to date, it was said, with only 80 British planes lost.

Simultaneously, British bombers hammered both Tobruk and Tripoli, the seaport capital of Libya.

So great were the fires started by bombing attacks on Tobruk that their red glare could be seen from Bardia.

The new British offensive threatened to out-flank and encircle

F.D. 'All Out' Aid Plan Speeded; See 17-Billion Budget

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—America's "all out" aid to Britain on a lend-and-lease basis actually will be conducted through a private corporation if Congress approves recommendations President Roosevelt will make tomorrow in his record-breaking budget message.

The Administration, official quarters disclosed, hopes to handle British aid in this round-about manner in order to avoid any possibility of conflict with existing law, notably the neutrality act and the Johnson act, which prohibits loans to nations in default of existing debts.

As Mr. Roosevelt is reported to desire it, such a corporation would be financed with at least three billion dollars of federal funds, but technically would avoid direct dealings between the American and British governments.

SURPLUS TO BRITAIN

The plan is similar to that employed earlier in getting planes, guns and other war materials quickly to the British, whereunder the Army and Navy declared a given plane order to be surplus, returned it to the manufacturer for credit against an order of later-model planes and permitted the

TURK ARMY MASSES TO HALT NAZIS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 7 (AP)—Bulgaria, hemmed between a big German army across the Danube in Rumania and reportedly-growing Turkish concentrations across her southern frontier, was reported to have massed almost all her troops to the south—facing Turkey.

Across the southern border, in Thrace, 400,000 Turkish troops were reported ready for any eventuality. Turkish soldiers asserted that if the Nazis crossed the Danube the Turks would march into Bulgaria to meet them.

German sources, however, expressed doubt the Turks would cross the frontier in such an eventuality and predicted, instead, they would remain in their Thracian forts, on the defensive.

Bulgars waited and hoped their country would not be made a battlefield, but some of them commented "what we hope doesn't count."

The odds in Sofia still were given as about four to one that the Germans would move in—perhaps in a few days, perhaps not until spring.

The Bulgarian high command figuratively shrugged its shoulders, granting leaves to many officers and men of its army for the Greek orthodox Christmas.

Although Bulgaria's war strength has been estimated at about 500,000 men, only about 100,000 are under arms. A few of these are along the Greek and the Yugoslav frontiers. Fewer still are across the Danube from the Germans in Rumania. Most of the rest face European Turkey.

Life goes on overseas—blackouts, bombings and blockades notwithstanding. Here is the second of a series of LETTERS FROM ENGLAND, written by real persons in war-ridden areas to relatives and friends in New England. These human documents disclose in their simplicity and sincerity the true spirit and hopes of the English people.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wolfenden,
38 Henderson St.,
Needham, Mass.

Mr. J. Hough
16 Hall St.
Ripley
Devonshire, England

Dear Aunt and Uncle:

The first purpose of this letter is to let you know that everybody is all right, and the second to wish you both a very happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year. I suppose you are all wondering how we are faring under the blitzkrieg.

Well, all I can say is, Hitler will have to do a lot more than this to beat England.

As far as we are concerned, personally, we have been very lucky. We live in the country about 14 miles from Nottingham and about 10 miles from Derby, while Birmingham is about 45 miles away. Well, the Luftwaffe have had several cracks at these places, and we get warnings here when they are over Derby and Nottingham

We can see the shells bursting in the sky from all the three places, and can hear the Derby barrage. The chief thought that we have is we are very lucky.

Whichever place they are attacking, they always come over Ripley and except for two delayed action bombs which did no damage at all, they have not dropped as much as a sausage!

AWE-INSPIRING

It's a wonderful and awe-inspiring sight to see the shells bursting in the sky at night, and to see the flares dropped from the planes. They have a big naval gun or two somewhere around, and the bang they make is enough to blast a plane out of the sky.

I am a special constable and have to go on duty one air raid in three. Incidentally, it's my turn on tonight if the sirens go. I'm paired up with the chap next door. We've had several all night sessions, which tells on you a bit when you have to work the next day!

You'd get a good laugh if you saw the girls during an air raid. Sally clutches two handbags, one containing the money, the other containing insurance policies and the like.

Mrs. Wood (next door) clutches a hand bag and an attache case, while we brave men give them instructions to keep away from the windows and sally forth in tin hats, etc.!

GO ON AS USUAL

I don't know whether your newspapers give you any impression of the general feeling over here, but I should think the best thing to say is that things go on just as usual, and that is no exaggeration. I don't think you could even say that war is the chief topic of conversation.

Of course, we revile the government now and then and grumble a bit about rationing.

You would notice, of course, especially on nights when there is no moon, the complete darkness, which is so thick that the other night Mr. Wood and I turned in the wrong

MARRIAGE TO KILLER BARRED—Kathryn Hopkins (right) is comforted by her sister Mary after learning that her marriage to Milton Leroy Dexter, 32, long-term hammer slayer, will be delayed until his release from Rhode Island prison, Providence. Miss Hopkins, 30, a social worker, met him in the prison.

Kelley, B.C. Hockey Coach, to Wed Soon

A romance that had its beginning on a Cambridge golf links two years ago was revealed today with announcement of the engagement of Miss Marjorie E. Michelson of Somerville and John A. "Snooks" Kelley, Boston College hockey coach.

The wedding will take place late in June, and the couple will honeymoon in Maine.

"John and I first met when he was president of the Fresh Pond Golf Club, Cambridge, two years ago," dark-haired, attractive Miss Michelson said today. "He's a wonderful golfer, and I was just trying to learn the game. I guess it was his patience with my awkwardness which first attracted me to him.

"Anyhow, he kept giving me instruction—and before we realized it we were in love!

John A. Kelley

"I shared John's interest in hockey. I'm a terrible fan. I hardly ever miss a B. C. game.

"John's team last year won the intercollegiate championship. Of course, you know about that. But I can't help boasting a little when I get the chance."

BUSINESS GRADUATE

Miss Michelson attended Somerville High School and Bryant & Stratton Business College. She is an assistant buyer for the Jordan Marsh Co. and has been with the store for four years.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Axel G. Michelson of Summer st., Somerville.

Kelley, in addition to his work as B. C. hockey coach, is assistant master at Haggerty school, Cambridge. He is a native of that city.

GAS BLAST KILLS WORKMAN SMOKER

James O'Connor of Charles st., Wakefield, a Malden and Melrose Gas Light Co. foreman, was killed today when gas in a manhole exploded and the blast-rocketed cover struck him on the head.

Ernest E. Turbeck of Pearl st., Medford, told police he was looking out a window of his home and saw O'Connor, with a lighted cigar in his mouth, lean over the manhole.

Instantly there was an explosion, Turbeck said, with the manhole cover and a piece of planking blown high in the air, the iron cover hitting the foreman as it rose.

The front windows were broken and one front wall cracked in a Pearl st. house where three women were talking in one of the apartments.

The women, Mrs. A. J. Champaigne, Mrs. Ella F. Copeland and Miss Susie Shepherd, all occupants of the house, said they were in Mrs. Champaigne's kitchen when the force of the explosion knocked them from their chairs.

Although the Malden & Melrose Gas Light Co. refused to give any information regarding the accident, or to identify the victim, Mrs. Champaigne said she had detected an odor of gas earlier today and had told the meter reader when he called.

The company was notified and a crew was sent into Pearl st., where they began to open both side of the street. The workers were at lunch, however, when O'Connor went to the manhole and bent over it.

O'Connor was married and the father of six children.

Britain Swept By Meningitis And Pneumonia

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Sir Wilson Jameson, chief medical officer of the health ministry, disclosed today that Britain was experiencing a marked wartime increase in cerebro-spinal fever (meningitis).

He said that cases reported to him increased from 1500 in 1939 to about 12,500 in 1940. The 1938 figure was 1268.

He added: "Although we are still very much afraid of cerebro-spinal fever, our great dread of it has gone because the mortality rate has fallen to a fraction of what it once was."

An increase in pneumonia cases from 42,000 in 1939 to "nearly 46,000" in 1940 also was reported.

Enteric fever cases, he said, mounted from 1500 in 1939 to 2800 last year. Dysentery cases, after dropping from 4170 in 1938 to 933 in 1939, rose to 2500, he said.

Amy Mollison's Body Still Sought

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The body of Amy Johnson Mollison, noted British flier, was still sought today in the Thames estuary, where she drowned after bailing out of a plane she was flying for the Air Transport Auxiliary.

Flight papers bearing her name, recovered after her plane dived into the estuary Sunday afternoon indicated she was off her course.

14 INJURED IN CRASH AT HARTFORD STATION

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 7 (INS)—Fourteen persons were injured today when a New Haven R. R. freight train plowed into the rear of an express mail train at the station here.

Four persons required hospital treatment. With the exception of John Aitkin, 61, of Hartford, a passenger, the injured were six mail employes, two express employes and two railroad employes.

At Hartford Hospital, in addition to Aitkin, who suffered a sprained back, were Frederick Shaw, 44, back injuries and possible fractured ribs, and Elliott Hoffman, abrasions of arms and possible fractures.

John Morrissey, 71, was taken to St. Francis Hospital with arm lacerations.

The freight train, consisting of 115 cars and two engines, crashed into the rear of the other train at the platform. The injured, with exception of Aitkin, were handling mail on the platform and were thrown about. So great was the impact that the mail train was pushed 210 feet.

The front end of the freight engine, manned by Engineer E. B. Moore and Conductor M. P. Daniels, was damaged. The engine submarined under the rear "deadhead" coach of the express.

Successor to White to Be Named Thursday

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—A successor to William Allen White as chairman of the committee to defend America by aiding the Allies will be chosen Thursday.

A spokesman said the executive committee meeting was postponed to allow more time for consideration.

Parolee McKone Plunge Victim

Weldon P. McKone, 50, who plunged from a seventh story window of the Hotel Essex on Sunday and is now in a critical condition at City Hospital, was identified today by authorities as a State Prison inmate who was released on parole two days before Christmas.

In June of 1938, according to the records, McKone was given a sentence of three to eight years in Middlesex Superior Court by Judge Wilford D. Gray after pleading guilty to the larceny of $19,336.94 from his sister, Mrs. Evelyn R. Torrey of Magoun ave., Medford.

They are a son and daughter of the late James L. McKone, pioneer automobile dealer of Commonwealth ave., who died in 1930, leaving an estate of approximately $60,000.

The son was appointed administrator, but allegedly squandered his sister's share on horse racing and in the stock market.

Mrs. Torrey, according to her husband, Leroy Torrey, has been ill since her brother was sent to prison, and because of her condition the news of his plunge at the hotel has been kept from her.

Torrey said that McKone's wife is a resident of Dennisport on Cape Cod.

F. D. Bay State College Chum Is Nazi Captive

BERLIN, Jan. 7 (AP)—Capt. Charles Davis Morgan, United States citizen and college days friend of President Roosevelt, is in a German prison camp, the United States embassy disclosed todaq.

Morgan, whose wife, Louise Warfield Morgan of Baltimore, is a cousin of the Duchess of Windsor, was captured early in June while fighting in the British army in the battle of Flanders, the embasey said.

Morgan fought for the British in the World War. He joined the British army again last January, was made a captain and a liaison officer between French and British in Flanders. He was commissioned without taking an oath of allegiance to the King.

For a time he concealed his nationality. Subsequently it was established from his passport that he was born in Plymouth, Mass., July 14, 1884.

Actress Miriam Hopkins didn't think much of the city council today for denouncing her show, "Battle of Angels." But, contrarily, she declared herself sorry Police Commr. Timilty sanctioned it, after revisions to soften players' lines. She's never liked the show anyway.

INSIDE STORY OF MUTINY AT SEA IN 1937

EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1941

Gainard Ultimatum Quelled Algic Row

This is the real story of an American sea captain, hero of the Athenia rescue, holder of the Navy Cross for his thrilling exploits on the City of Flint. Certain elements in maritime circles which he calls "foreign influences" bar him from the bridge of any merchant ship. Many persons are convinced that Reds rule the ranks of the merchant marine and that Communists control the National Maritime Union. Others see Nazi forces undermining seamen's organizations. Read more of Capt. Joseph A. Gainard's experiences here and draw your own conclusions.

By JAMES DOOLING

It is hard to understand why the National Maritime Union leaders picked the man they did when the decision was made to put some pressure on the masters of American ships.

The most casual study of Capt. Gainard's background should have indicated that the going would be rough, because from high school days he had the reputation of being a redoubtable citizen.

Capt. Gainard

He played tackle on the Chelsea High School football team in 1906 and was a hard-hitting, lanky dynamo who didn't know the meaning of quit. Innately he was stubborn in sticking to what he thought was right, yet his was a mind quick to recognize when a change in tactics was necessary to meet a changed situation.

All his life he loved the sea, but he was in his early 20's before he made up his mind to follow it. When he did make his decision, the sea and its duties came naturally to him because he liked it. He started from the bottom in the merchant marine and gradually worked his way to the top, joining the United States Navy on the way.

When the first World War came to America, Joe Gainard was called to the colors. He was assigned as a member of the armed guard on the freighter Willehad, one of the German ships seized by this country in 1917.

The Willehad was steaming along one day in convoy with the troopship Antilles when a German submarine crept up, drew a bead on the Antilles and let go a torpedo that found its deadly mark. Sixty-seven men died on the Antilles and the force of the explosion rocked the Willehad, 500 yards away.

But Joe Gainard was to have closer contact with war than that and when he was a junior officer on the U. S. S. President Lincoln another ex-German ship, he had it.

BLOWN OUT OF WATER

Another submarine caught up with him and this one blew the President Lincoln out of the water. Joe Gainard found himself, with other survivors, floating around in lifeboats, and barely escaped capture by the German before being picked up.

After this experience he served on the U. S. S. Great Northern, on the U. S. S. Charles (once the Harvard, plying between Boston and New York), on the U. S. S. Vulcan, and on the U. S. S. Neptune, sister-ship of the ill-fated Cyclops.

He was mustered out of the Navy with a full skipper's ticket, a license to sail any kind of a ship anywhere in the world. In the course of the years following, he had many top commands, always on Maritime Commission ships. He made countless friends in ports here and abroad, but it was the affair of the Algic which precipitated his name into headlines.

The cruise of the Algic was a three-month drama, packed with tragedy, strikes, deaths and desertions, and finally the mutiny. It lacked only a hurricane or two to be as lurid as any fictional thriller of the sea.

"ON THE BEACH"

Capt. Gainard goes realistically into the cruise of the Algic in the book "Yankee Skipper" which he has written, but it is the growing difficulty with the National Maritime Union which looms later as more important to his career than any other incident on the voyage.

When, last year, he wrote his recollections of 25 years at sea, the skipper hardly foresaw that 1940 would end with him "on the beach," although he may have had a premonition of it.

The things that the captain stands for are the things that the National Maritime Union opposes with all its might. It is not strange then, that those who many people suspect take their orders from Moscow, should want to get master mariners like himself off the sea.

But they didn't have the excuse that he was a harsh taskmaster, the skipper somewhat proudly asserts.

"I've always treated the men in my crews as I wanted to be treated myself and most of the men who have sailed with me recognize that," he says.

"It is only the malcontents, a certain element in every group, who have caused trouble. They have been so encouraged by their success in late years that they are now in control.

"NOT ULTIMATE ANSWER"

"I recognize that things were often hard for seamen after the war and that some of them had just grievances, but the methods now followed do not appear to be the ultimate answer to their problems.

"Men who worked for the original owner of a line had a fair life and fair play. Their pay was good and if some overzealous official got into control in a company a captain could always look out for his men.

"That is the kind of a captain I have always tried to be. I have never moved a ship during meal hours to save stevedores' overtime pay and that is something which makes a seaman's life miserable.

"I have always seen to it, that we had good food on our ship and seamen can tell you how important that is."

For all of that, when the Algic, chartered by the American Republic Line, was ready to sail out of Baltimore, back in the summer of 1937, leaders of the crew waited upon Capt. Gainard and the other officers with the demand that the skipper and his mates join a National Maritime Union affiliate.

REFUSED TO JOIN

To the captain and the other officers it was unthinkable that officers and men alike be in what was the same union for all practical purposes.

They didn't think it would work. They refused.

The Algic had its first sit-down strike right there, and while it was eventually straightened out by a promise to consider the problems after the end of the voyage, the organization leaders were riding high from that time on . . .

All the way down to Uruguay there were delegations waiting on Capt. Gainard to complain about this or that.

"The eventual excuse for the mutiny at Montevideo was only a dodge," the skipper asserted. "Trouble was brewing all the way.

"The stevedores down there were the same ones we had been using for a dozen years. There was a story going the rounds at the time that there was a strike among them, but it wasn't a strike at all.

"There was a private argument among them.

"A man of one racial extraction had refused to work with another and both men had their supporters.

GOT OUT OF BED

"Some of my crew decided they had a good excuse to join in the trouble, and basing their actions on the premise that there was a strike, they refused to make steam to operate the winches for unloading.

"I got out of a sick bed at the time to reason with them. I told them they couldn't strike against the government and that the Algic was a government ship. They refused to listen to reason —some of them.

"I knew that refusal to obey a captain's orders was mutiny, but I telephoned to Chairman Kennedy so that there would be no misunderstanding.

"There has been a 'Smear Kennedy' campaign on since he has returned from England and there were persons quite willing to attempt smearing him when he was chairman of the Maritime Commission, but he'll probably get along all right."

The rest of the Algic affair is history—Kennedy's complete backing of Capt. Gainard; his order to put the National Maritime Union strike-leaders in irons if they didn't call off their demonstration.

The principle that Capt. Gainard invoked and the principle Joe Kennedy affirmed was the eternal principle that employes can't strike against the government.

Capt. Gainard didn't have to put the insurrectionists in irons because they saw the light and went back to work in face of the ultimatum, but the story of the Algic was flashed up to his country and the National Maritime Union, nearing the peak of its power, let out a great roar.

ROAR BURSTS

When the Algic docked at Baltimore and fourteen men were arrested the roar became louder.

The trial brought an imposing array of legal talent to the aid of the accused.

Charges of mutiny were softened and the men were indicted for "inciting a revolt against the authority of the captain."

All 14 defendants were convicted. Nine were jailed for two months each; five were fined $50 each.

The convicted men appealed, but the court, denying motions for a new trial, ruled significantly:

"The conduct of the defendants was more serious in its implications than in its actual results.

"The laws of the United States with regard to seamen who have signed articles for a particular voyage may not be violated with impunity."

The affair of the Algic has never been forgotten. It has dogged Capt. Gainard to this day.

The National Maritime Union had flung down the gauntlet to this American skipper.

WRATH FOLLOWS

He had managed to conduct affairs on his ship so that they met with the approval of the U. S. Maritime Commission, but Curran & Company's wrath followed Capt. Gainard aboard the City of Flint. (Joe Curran is head of the National Maritime Union.)

There was discontent in some quarters and it took time to show. But it showed.

Grandma Feeds 8 Orphan Pups Plus 3 of Own

Here's a dog's life for you, but Lonely Lady—a misnomer if there ever was one—is taking it all in stride.

The pedigreed Boston terrier, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Colvin of Walnut st., Waltham, is not only mothering her own new brood of three, but eight more grandpups, and a motherless cocker spaniel thrown in.

She's a pretty busy dog, but affectionate as they make them, the Colvins proudly said today. Of course, her owners spell her once in a while by bottle-feeding some of the boarders, but grandma never complains, even when the traffic is heaviest.

The eight orphaned grandpups are a story in themselves. They came into the world by caesarian birth, but their mother, Waltham Duchess, didn't survive more than 24 hours.

Dr. Roland A. Lombardi of Commonwealth ave., who delivered the pups, was amazed.

"Four are a lot for a terrier; six are rare; eight are unheard of," he said. "I don't wonder the mother didn't survive."

Lonely Lady's litter was born on Dec. 22. The cocker spaniel who takes the 12th place at the tab'e, belongs to friends of the Colvins.

Governor Names 3 to Safety Board

Gov. Saltonstall today appointed a committee on highways and public safety to assist the central committee in Washington, at the request of Sec. of War Stimson.

The governor named Herman A. MacDonald, public works commissioner, Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin and Public Safety Commr. Eugene M. McSweeney.

Saltonstall, who will attend President Roosevelt's inaugural at the capital on Jan. 20, also announced that he will remain over there the following day to preside at a meeting of the Council of State Governors.

50,983 in Texas Stricken by Flu

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 7 (AP)—The worst influenza epidemic in 20 years has spread over Texas with no indication when it will abate, Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, said today.

Citing 32,983 new cases for the week ended Jan. 4, Dr. Cox said cases reported now total 50,983. Six hundrd cases of pneumonia, four times the normal, have been reported.

'Race Hatred' Law In Jersey Ruled Legal

NEWTON, N. J., Jan. 7 (AP)—Sussex County Judge John C. F. D., Jr., Starts Job, Expects No Favors

By INEZ ROBB
International News Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (INS)—It would be slightly hyperbolic to record that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., buckled down to his first day's gainful employment just like any young American in similar circumstances.

Young Mr. Roosevelt hung up his hat in the legal firm of Wright, Gordon, Zachary and Parlin at 63 Wall st., a thoroughfare highly allergic to Roosevelts from time to time in the past. The President's third and handsomest son will toil there as just another $2100-a-year law clerk.

But at the end of the first day Franklin D., Jr., hadn't signed any big, important legal papers. He hadn't opened any mail. In fact, he hadn't even had a taste of what the job will be like from now on.

"The trouble with this first day is that I've had no time to do anything but pose for newspaper photographers and be interviewed by reporters," he said with a rueful grin at the end of his initial hitch in working harness.

DIDN'T HEAR DAD

"I didn't even have time to listen to my old man deliver his address to Congress," he added regretfully. I said that I had.

"Was he good?" asked his son eagerly. "Was he specific?"

This son, who is the spit and image of his father at his age, settled back behind his flat top desk identical with a dozen similar desks in the big room—and talked about this, his first job.

"I'm starting out the same way everyone else does," said Franklin D., Jr., 26, a bonafide charm boy if ever there was one. "I have a desk here with a lot of other people. There's nothing fancy about it."

Missing Girl Mystery Deepens

ATTLEBORO, Jan. 7—More mystery entered the case of the vanished Phyllis Hawkins, reported elopement bride, when her father today left here for a meeting with New Hampshire state police at Hampton, N. H., taking with him photographs of his daughter.

This was revealed by Mrs. Edwin E. Hawkins, mother of the 24-year-old box factory worker, who said she has no doubt that a postcard received yesterday from Seabrook, N. H., signed, "Phyllis," and stating she was "happily married," was written by the girl.

Mrs. Hawkins also said she had talked to a woman who declared herself to be the wife of a Wrentham man, also an employe of the box factory, who has been missing also since Friday.

The man, according to Mrs. Hawkins, is the father of a 4-year-old girl.

In a telephone conversation the Wrentham woman, according to Mrs. Hawkins, several times mentioned a "cute little blonde" in whom her husband was interested at the factory.

Although a New Hampshire state police check in Seabury, N. H., Hampton, N. H., and at Salisbury failed to produce any record of the missing girl's marriage, police in the area said a couple had been seen at an overnight camp in the New Hampshire area, with the girl answering Phyllis' description.

Before he left home today, Hawkins, local florist, asserted the handwriting on the postcard received yesterday appeared shaky.

"It looks to me," he said, "as though my daughter was under great stress and in a highly nervous state when she wrote that card. I'm afraid she is being kept away against her will."

OLD GUNS LOAD WOE FOR BOYS

Two Civil War rifles brought three youths to grief in Brookline court today and before the session was ended the trio stood charged with being principals in a miniature crime wave.

The youths gave the names of Arthur Wiegand, 20, of Brooks st.; Lawrence Hickey, 19, of Linden st., both Brookline, and David Rossier, 19, of Commonwealth ave., Back Bay.

Police said that after Wiegand and Hickey had broken into a Cypress st. store and taken $36, Wiegand and Rossier entered St. Aidan's High School in Brookline and stole four Civil War rifles.

Then, said the police, Wiegand and Rossier sold two of the guns to an unsuspecting shopkeeper in Cypress st., Wiegand noting where the man kept his money.

Later Wiegand and Hickey broke into that store and got $86, the court was told. Wiegand and Rossier subsequently offered to sell the remaining two rifle relics to Shepard Aroff, Harvard st., Brookline, antique dealer, it is alleged, and he called police.

Wiegand and Rossier were arrested and police said that a quantity of fur coats were found in Rossier's automatic in the Back Bay.

Wiegand and Hickey are further accused of having raided the manual training shop of Brookline high school, taking a number of auto tires and wheels.

Rossier and Wiegand are also said to have stolen about 60 wreaths off doors in Brookline, reselling them and getting $3 for $40 worth of wreaths.

Wiegand was held in $1600; Hickey in $1000, and Rossier in $1100.

SOLONS BALK AT CUT OF OLD AGE PENSION

Although it seeks to liberalize existing law for elderly men and women receiving old age assistance, the special legislative recess commission organized last October today turned thumbs down on any attempt to shunt the responsibility of children to the State.

Submitted over the signature of Sen. James A. Gunn of Turners Falls, chairman, concluding analysis of 87 legislative documents and data obtained from state departments of this and other states, the report said this material "disclosed a firm conclusion that entire exemption of children from contributing to support of their needy parents would lead to a moral breakdown."

The cost of old age assistance to the Commonwealth in 1939 was $27,022,294, the report said.

AS BRIDAL CURB

Strong pleas were made, the report said, that society should not discourage children from marrying and establishing families by imposing a preventing burden in the form of enforced legal support of parents.

The commission recognized this severe handicap but offered instead of full exemption from responsibility these liberalizations:

1—Man and wife living apart from parents, and having minor child shall not be expected to contribute to support of parents unless a legally liable son or daughter has an income over $2000 a year or the equivalent.

2—Man and wife living apart from parents and having two minor children shall not be expected to contribute . . . unless son or daughter has an income exceeding $2500 a year.

$1000 MINIMUM

3—Man and wife living apart from parents and having three minor children shall not be expected to contribute unless son or daughter has an income above $3000 a year.

The commission further recommends that unmarried children of old age assistance recipients, who live apart from parents and whose annual income is $1000 or less, shall not be expected to contribute to support of parents.

Another change is suggested in a recommendation from the welfare department that it revise its rules to provide the following schedule of contribution from unmarried sons and daughters who live with aged parents.

Forty per cent of gross income up to $14.99 a week.

Fifty per cent of gross income from $15 to $19.99.

Sixty per cent of gross income from $20 to $25.

A new section recommends that membership in fraternal benefit societies or other organizations paying sick and death benefits shall not disqualify an applicant from assistance.

OTHER CHANGES URGED

By way of further liberalization, the commission recommends the law be amended so eligibles shall be required to have resided in the Commonwealth not less than three years instead of five during the nine immediately preceding date of application for assistance.

It suggests permissible absence of 30 days from the State be extended to three months or longer to prevent hardship.

The commission reports that, while complete separation of old age assistance divisions from welfare or general relief office would save the elderly aged embarrassment, it is convinced that the expense of separate divisions would overtax the resources of already overburdened towns.

URGES $40 LIMIT

Concurring in the Gunn report were Rep. Andrew F. Carlin of Boston, Frank P. Speare, Richard K. Conant of Lincoln, and Mrs. Mabel C. Batchelder of Worcester.

Rep. Adolph Johnson of Brockton offered as an additional recommendation that $40 a month be established as the minimum, in place of the present $30 minimum which is paid only to approximately one-third of the recipients.

The rate should be $40, he said, with a provision that local boards should deduct from that amount for other income an applicant may have.

5 DIE IN PLANE CRASH

RIVERS, Man., Jan. 7 (AP)—Five men were killed when an airplane from the British Commonwealth Air Training School here crashed.

Suspect Held In Girl Beating

Out of City Hospital only a week, 11-year-old Margaret Frieberger of Jamaica Plain, in West Roxbury court today faced the man accused of blacking her eyes, knocking her teeth loose and causing her concussion of the brain.

"The man," she said, "He called my mother some awful names. I wouldn't even repeat them. Then he rushed at her, and he knocked me down."

The accused, Michael Ivanosky, 30, of Lamartine st., Jamaica Plain, was found guilty of assault and battery and held in $2000 after a complete report on the little girl's injuries was made.

DENTISTS FACING DRAFT 'PLOT' QUIZ

As 257 prospective recruits for Uncle Sam's draft army reported at induction stations in Boston, Worcester and Springfield today, a state-wide probe of alleged draft dodging through medical subterfuge loomed as a possibility.

Reports of a pending investigation were occasioned by charges that a Newton Center youth underwent a surgical operation in order to be ruled unfit.

Two Boston doctors, one an oral surgeon, said they would testify tonight before the Newton Draft Board.

The hearing was called to determine truth or falsity of charges that the youth did not need the operation but submitted to it in an effort to evade the draft.

It is claimed the operation was performed in a Back Bay office.

Boston police were asked to notify the two doctors that their presence at the hearing "would be appreciated." No formal summonses were issued nor were any police charges made.

Meantime, today's new batch of prospective draftees were assembling at Worcester, Springfield and Boston from local draft boards at Greenfield, Easthampton, Holyoke, Newton, North Attleboro, Norwood, Quincy, Wollaston, Revere, Saugus, Somerville, Southbridge, Spencer, Swampscott, Taunton, Wakefield, Waltham, Ware and Watertown.

AND OCCUPANTS DROVE AWAY—After their coal truck skidded across the sidewalk and plunged 30 feet over the Cottage Farm bridge, Patrick Fallon of Dorchester and William Gallagher of Charlestown pulled themselves from the cab, called garage crew to right the overturned vehicle . . . and drove away unhurt. Accident resulted when Fallon, who was driving the truck, swerved to avoid striking a pleasure car.

ASCAP Has Billy Rose Put Its Songs on Air

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (INS)—The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers today enlisted the services of Billy Rose, the super-showman, in its fight against the radio networks.

Rose will produce a series of radio shows to be called "ASCAP on Parade," which will be broadcast beginning Jan. 18 on stations which have signed ASCAP contracts. The programs will feature the leading ASCAP tune hits.

Music and comedy will be included and Irving Berlin will be one of the stars on the first broadcast which is being written by Oscar Hammerstein.

ASCAP meanwhile withheld comment on reports it was studying the possibility of licensing radio advertisers directly for use of its music on commercial programs.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7 (INS)—One possible method of settling the feud between ASCAP and the radio networks was being studied here today.

The method was ASCAP's projected plan to license radio advertisers for use of songs.

Harry Engel, head of Broadcast Music, Inc., the networks-controlled source of supply since ASCAP songs have been banned from major radio stations, favors the plan.

Children's Policeman Idol Dies in Brighton

Looked upon by hundreds of youngsters as their guide and advisor rather than as a policeman, Patrolman Stephen P. Harrington, 39, of Station 14, Brighton, died today at his home, 129 Parsons st., Brighton, after a week's illness with pneumonia.

Harrington, a policeman for 13 years, had been director of the Junior Police Corps and enjoyed the love and respect of every neighborhood youngster.

He leaves a widow, Ann M. Harrington, and a young son.

SUGGEST 277 HICCOUGH CURES

That four-day hiccough marathon by Miss Pauline Pfeffer, 34, of Appleton st., South End, is over. She's recuperating at City Hospital after the official cure won hands-down over 277 suggestions sent in by ex-niccoughers.

Dr. Louis Schwartz, City supervisor, said that the hospital's all-time record for "back seat doctors" (more than 500 telephone calls, telegrams and letters) had been achieved, not long after No. 500 advised use of several barking dogs—not too near the patient.

Fondling, a bit gloomily, the bottle of blackberry juice sent in by a New Hampshire farmer ("swallow half-tablespoonful and then take a long walk") Dr. Schwartz reported today:

"Miss Pfeffer came into the emergency ward one night, hiccoughing at the rate of 30 a minute. Examination showed no mechanical disturbance, food obstruction, or any pathological condition like lung congestion. Oxygen and carbon dioxide were administered through a mask until a cure was effected."

But within four days Dr. Schwartz learned that only the following could do the job:

Firecrackers under the bed; a spoonful of ether; a quart of imported champagne; whistling through the teeth; holding ear drums and humming; "freezing" the diaphragm.

Dr. Schwartz recommends his emergency home treatment:

1—Drink water slowly. 2—Press the right side of the neck gently.

"And don't think about it," he said. "Think of something wonderful."

Heaviest Nazi Day Raid Kills Several

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—German raiders were reported to have killed or wounded several persons in a Midlands town today in the heaviest of a series of daylight raids against that industrial area, London and the southeast coast.

The Midlands casualties were reported in the suburb of a town where several houses were demolished. This raid was carried out as London was kept under alert for more than three hours and the city's anti-aircraft defenses roared repeatedly at the attackers.

Two explosions were heard in London soon after the sirens sounded. In the late afternoon, machine-gun fire was heard from a plane over the capital's outskirts. Anti-aircraft fire was heard in various London districts and along the Thames estuary.

Informed German sources in Berlin said tonight that several bombs exploded in filtering apparatus and the boiler room of a celluloid factory southwest of London when a German plane attacked it. They said five hits were scored. A railway station and tracks in the Midlands were bombed from a low altitude, it was stated, and two hangars and a number of planes were hit at an airport north of London.—Editor's Note.

Londoners went about their business without fluster despite the long alert and the anti-aircraft fire, unusually persistent for the daytime.

Even when the shrill whistles of London bobbies warned that the raiders were overhead, hurrying shoppers and businessmen merely looked up and kept going. Taxis, buses and trucks kept moving along.

The raiders could be heard flying low but could not be seen because of the clouds.

A town in the home counties—the area around London—also was attacked. Bursts of machine-gun and anti-aircraft fire were heard and bombs exploded in the distance.

Other raiders also were reported in an East Anglian town and the rumble of several high explosive bombs was heard in the distance.

A German bomber, believed to have bene a Dornier, dived four times to attack two trawlers in plain view of watchers on the southeast coast.

The plane twice dived and machine-gunned the vessels, then released two bombs near one ship, returned and repeated the machine-gunning.

It was held off by the trawlers' machine-guns, however, and fled to sea at the appearance of a Spitfire.

Snow and bad weather conditions over the Continent kept Britain's bombers away from Germany and Britain also experienced a respite from the almost nightly assault of the Luftwaffe.

The Royal Air Force was said to have limited its activities to a few short armed reconnaissance flights across the channel to German "invasion ports" early last evening.

ITALY HITS F.D. TALK; NAZIS MUM

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt's message to Congress was described by Italian political circles today as "a declared will to an ideological war in the field of internal politics and a patent reliance on the aims of the fight for maintenance of plutocratic and selfish imperialisms."

Atmospheric conditions interfered with radio reception in Berlin and a Nazi foreign office spokesman said for that reason no authorized reaction was obtainable today.

DNB, official German news agency, however, distributed a brief summary of the message.

The Japan Times, which has close connections with the Tokyo foreign office, said his counsel against a "dictator's peace" could be interpreted as "refusal to recognize any agreements between other powers which do not conform to American policy." The Japanese-language press carried the speech without editorial comment.

Official British quarters said the message was "an inspiration to the people and leaders of this country to pursue their struggle, fully confident that no shortage of war material will delay or hamper efforts to secure victory."

The official Australian radio said "Mr. Roosevelt's address has delighted Australia; it is felt that the President hit every major nail on the head."

Nazis Deny Intent in Eire

BERLIN, Jan. 7 (AP)—Germany disclaimed today any responsibility for bombs dropped near Dublin the night of Jan. 2-3, but said it was possible that German planes might have flown over neutral Ireland the night of Jan. 1-2, authorized sources said.

The German government promised the Irish charge d'affairs in Berlin that it would continue negotiations concerning the flights and reported bombing, and would offer regrets and reparations for possible damage if investigations showed German fliers were to blame.

7 Die as Bomb Hits BBC Headquarters

By JAMES E. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 7 (INS)—Caught helpless at their microphones, desks and control boards, seven radio experts were killed and a large number injured when two heavy bombs badly damaged the headquarters of the British Broadcasting Co. in London's West End, it was learned today.

The injured included Fred Bate, National Broadcasting Co. representative in London, whose voice is well known to American radio listeners. A hero of the attack was Bruce Belfrage, who was reading a news broadcast when the first bomb struck and continued calmly with his script after shouting:

"It's all right."

BROADCASTERS CARRY ON

The BBC made no attempt to minimize the damage and casualties, but emphasized that it carried on throughout the raid and afterward, despite the loss of walls, windows and ceilings in the gigantic circular building that overlooks fashionable Portland pl. and Langham sq.

As in the case of all big London business houses, hotels and similar establishments, the BBC makes a practice of sending "spotters" to the roof the moment that air raid alarm sounds. These watchers have portable telephones which are plugged into loud speakers at strategic points throughout the building.

SPOTTER WARNS OF BOMB

The attack, like 400 and more that had gone before, had been in progress for some minutes without any interruption in the 24-hour work of the BBC, when suddenly came the excited voice of a "spotter."

"Look out!" he shouted. "Here comes a big one."

And come it did. The next second a huge bomb struck a cornice at the fifth-floor level of the building, tearing a huge gash in the Portland Place side. The concussion itself, as well as falling walls and masonry, took the lives of the seven victims.

Perhaps the most significant thing about the whole incident was that no one bothered to seek the spacious and comparatively safe air raid shelters beneath the building.

BRITISH BOMB 2 SHIPS

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—British bombers damaged an "enemy" merchantman off the coast of Norway and scored a direct hit on an "enemy" tanker off the Netherlands coast yesterday, the air ministry reported today.

British Capture Tobruk Airport

Tobruk and thrust against Benghazi, 140 miles further west.

Authorities revealed that only a few hours after Bardia and some 30,000 Italian troops were captured, British forces reached the Tobruk area, where the Italians have strengthened their fortifications.

These defenses are believed to consist of two long, strong lines in a semi-circle around the port of Tobruk—the biggest and best between Tunisia and Egypt.

British quarters said that the air attacks on Tobruk were aimed chiefly at naval barracks and other military targets and that there objectives "have suffered heavily."

Similarly, the Middle East RAF command announced that in the raid on Tripoli torrents of bombs fell amid Italian warships and merchant shipping.

A communique stated several tons of explosives were dumped on the Tripoli power station, customs building, wharves and shipping during a night-long attack and that large fires, visible 30 miles out to sea, "continued burning fiercely throughout the attack."

Bombs burst on oil storage plants, the communique added, "while other bombs straddled merchant vessels and naval units in the harbor."

Official quarters in London estimated that the British army of the Nile has rendered 94,000 Italian troops "ineffective" in fighting in North Africa since Dec. 9. These figures include, it was said, at least 50,000 prisoners, plus wounded and dead. In addition, the British forces were said to have captured "huge quantities" of war materials.

JAPAN'S BUDGET RISES

ROME, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Italian government, with a budget deficit of approximately $1,402,000,000 from the past fiscal year, announced today a $2,000,000,000 budget for the coming year, exclusive of probable war costs.

AFRICAN WAR STRATEGY—As Rome admits that British forces are now only 22 miles from Tobruk, where Gen. Graziani is preparing for a siege, progress of British war along African front is shown in this map.

Eyewitness Tells Of Convoy Thrills

By DREW MIDDLETON

ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER OFF FRENCH COAST, Jan. 7 (AP)—Despite shells, bombs, mines and torpedoes, despite wrecks which dot the frigid waters, Britannia still appears to rule these waves.

From the destroyer's bridge I can see many merchantmen. Convoys bound north and south are sitting out, their barrage balloons nodding in grey skies. Destroyers marshal our convoy at the mouth of a harbor. Each merchantman carries three or four freight trains. They are all safe. Why? Well, here's a log of our voyage:

Afternoon—The quick, rhythmic fire of distant anti-aircraft guns pulses through the sharp cold air as we leave the harbor. No planes are in sight. A seaman says quietly, "Jerry's 'aving a go somewhere."

The officers have changed from smart shore "blues" to a variety of garments. The captain wears a heavy wool-lined canvas coat over layers of sweaters, fleece-lined boots, fur-lined mittens over gloves. His head is covered by knitted wool helmet—he doesn't look much like the officer who a few days ago received from his King the Distinguished Service Cross.

WARSHIP ON GUARD

Guarded by the destroyers and fast motorboats built during the World War to halt German submarine raids, the convoy moves out to sea. Above it are the balloon ships, a protection against dive bombers.

A cheer ripples down the line of ships as two formations of Blenheims fly by . . . A day later you learn they bombed Brest.

Evening—Our dinner is sandwiches, soup and tea gulped on rolling decks. Between gulps, a navigator calls the course. The captain eyes the convoy and mutters that some of the vessels are falling behind.

He reckons the convoy will pass "Hellfire Corner," rounding into the Strait of Dover, during darkness.

You stand gazing into icy blackness for a while and then stretch out for a try at sleep.

Early morning—it's still very dark. The blacked out destroyer gives you the feeling of a ghost ship moving through leagues of blackness.

Suddenly there is the sound of a plane. The lookout calls out, "Aircraft approaching."

HELL FROM BOMBER S

An officer shouts, "Hold fire!" He mutters to himself and then adds, "We fire and he gets our location, and then a little while later we catch hell from the bombers."

We steam on and the drone of the airplane's motors dies in the dark.

An hour later the blackness turns to gray. Dawn breaks dirty and gray. The Dover cliffs, topped with snow, rise out of the windswept seas. Off on the other side, a thin line of black separates the sea and the sky—the French coast.

From his chair where he has huddled in sleep during the night, the captain speaks.

"We'll probably get some shelling soon. Don't worry," he adds, they're not very accurate."

Suddenly an orange flame stabs the gray French coast. You look around at the lookouts. They gaze indifferently at the sea. An officer starts counting. When he reaches 50 there's another sound.

"Whack, whack, whack!"—a shell in the air. And then the explosion. Behind us a column of water leaps 150 feet skyward.

For five minutes this goes on.

"It's over a thousand," says an officer.

"Don't be a fool," answers another, "it's only about 988."

The captain grins.

HOW MANY "BRICKS"

"They're arguing," he says, "how many bricks (shells) Jerry has chucked at us in the last six months."

Every time a shell bursts there's a "Whee" and a shower of shell fragments. The ship's doctor shows you one casually—a jagged piece of metal two and a half inches long.

"They make an ugly wound," he says.

We are out of the shelling area—only aircraft to worry about now. We don't have long to wait. Off to the east we see a plane with the familiar twin tails of the Messerschmitt 110. Guns swing to meet it, but the plane vanishes before the guns can open fire.

A moment later the guns of a destroyer astern begin crackling. Then ours follow, and when the four-inchers start slamming away that's noise.

ONE SCARED AWAY

You hang onto the rail. The deck jumps as the guns bang away. You try to fix your binoculars on the planes. There are more than one now. The concussion bumps the eyepieces against your nose. There's that familiar "whish" of a falling bomb. A column of water bigger than the others zooms into the air a half-mile from our ship.

That's all, just one.

"We scared him off," said the captain calmly.

Afternoon—For the last hour we've been passing floating mines. We steer between two of them and flash a signal to the convoy. The merchantmen reply with whistle toots, and move around the sinister explosives like elderly chorus girls.

"I got knocked off the bridge when he hit one of them blinkin' things," says a yeoman signaler as we look down on the big barrel-like mines.

DRINK IN CELEBRATION

Late afternoon—it's bitterly cold. Snow squalls hide the English shore and snow is crusting on deck and around the guns. The crew of one of the four-inchers is playing follow-the-leader to keep warm.

The convoy moves steadily onward to port. Mine sweepers churn out to pick up any stray mines.

Evening—We nose in, the captain directing the ticklish job of tieing up at a buoy in the face of a shrieking wind. He turns:

"Here's another one in," he says, "what about a drink?"

Yes. It's still the English channel.

LABOR, BRITISH PROBLEM

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

Back from Service as War Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—John Englishman who works in the ladies' ready-to-wear at Selfridge's may find himself one day soon turning out carburetors in an airplane factory.

Winston Churchill's new government got the right in the defense powers act last May 22 to order any man to leave the job he's doing, if it is considered non-essential to the war effort, and to take on that is essential. Churchill never has used this power—partly because it is loaded with political dynamite.

Neutral observers say British labor already is restive. Labor Minister Ernest Bevin declares use of this measure would heighten that feeling and in the long run would bring no worthwhile speed-up in production.

The veteran union boss who talks like a heavyweight wrestler and talks like a stevedore presents this argument on behalf of 7 million union members:

"Give labor what it wants and it will work its head off, but force labor and it will be sure to slow down."

Munitions orders beside the numerous factories that are working below capacity has posed a grave problem.

Labor conscription in the opinion of certain military men and industrialists is the only answer.

One recognized reason why there is a shortage of skilled labor is that some of it has been absorbed into the Army.

The logical thing to do, in the opinion of one group of experts, would be to release these men to return to their old jobs.

One grievance of the British workman is his weekly paycheck. He maintains his salary has not kept pace with the war-invoked rise in the cost of living.

"Do Party Politics Hamper Britain's War Efforts?" will be discussed in William McGaffin's next next article in tomorrow's Boston American.

Greeks Report New Gains

ATHENS, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Greeks reported new gains today in the coastal sector and north of Klisura and said the Italian hold in the Tepeleni-Klisura region of Albania was weakening.

An advance northeast of Chimara, dispatches said, threatens to cut Italian communications between Tepeleni and Valona, the Greeks' next major objective.

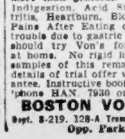
Bombs Raze American Monument in Brest

BERLIN, Jan. 7 (AP)—Informed sources said today that an American monument in Brest, France, commemorating the landing of the first United States troops there in 1917, was "destroyed" by British bombs the night of Jan. 4.

FREE SAMPLES OF REMARKABLE TREATMENT FOR

STOMACH ULCERS

DUE TO GASTRIC HYPERACIDITY



Mrs. Chester Lanagan, Franklin Mass., writes: "The relief my husband received from Von's Pink Tablets for acid stomach trouble is simply remarkable. For the first time in years he is able to eat and enjoy a good meal without fear of after-effects. He was relieved of all pain, and because of this has slept perfectly. He gained weight in the first weeks of the treatment. I would like to tell everyone suffering as he suffered to get your medicine without delay. Believe me, we are more than grateful." If you suffer from Indigestion, Acid Stomach Ulcers, Gastritis, Heartburn, Bloating, Sour Stomach, Pains After Eating or any other stomach trouble due to gastric hyperacidity, you, too, should try Von's for prompt relief right at home. No rigid liquid diet. Get FREE samples of this remarkable treatment and details of trial offer with money back guarantee. Instructive booklet is included. Write, phone HAN. 7930 or call at

'Four Mothers' To Para-Fenway

Latest and said to be best of a very successful series, "Four Mothers," open tomorrow at the Paramount and Fenway theaters.

The cast differs from that of its predecessors, "Four Daughters" and "Four Wives," only in point of natural population increase. As the new title indicates, some of the Lemp daughters have become mothers.

Tots Barbara Quintanilla and Sharon Van play the children of Priscilla Lane and Gale Page, and twins Barbara Ann and Arlene Lande are assigned to Lola Lane.

Jeffrey Lynn, Rosemary Lane, Eddie Albert, Frank McHugh, Dick Foran, Claude Rains, May Robson and Vera Lewis are the other principals. William Keighley directed. The rest of the staff, like the cast, is little changed.

While the series is self-limiting, as it set out to depict only four phases in the lives of an interesting American family, there is a possibility that one or two more episodes in the lives of the Lemp family may be filmed in the next year.

The companion feature on the new Paramount and Fenway twin bills will be "Texas Rangers Ride Again," described as a romance wreathed in gunsmoke with John Howard, Ellen Drew and Akim Tamiroff.

Lowell's James Hogan directed.

Plenty of Variety For Casino Fans

Fifteen hours of entertainment daily is the Casino Theater's new program, now that motion pictures are again supplementing the three daily stage shows at this popular Hanover st. house.

Jo Anne, one of burlesque's most fetching lovelies; Bubbles Yvonne, Pepper Parker, Chet Boswell, Tommy Raft, Joe Freed and Bobby Fay head the current stage show. Topping the accompanying stage bill are "Angels Without Wings," starring Cary Grant, and "Parents on Trial."

Benny-Allen Hit To Scollay, Modern

Jack Benny and Fred Allen carry their celebrated fun feud to the screen in "Love Thy Neighbor," which moves to the Scollay and Modern screens tomorrow for a week's run. Appearing with these silly-billys from Manhattan are Mary Martin, Rochester, Verree Teasdale, the Merry Macs and Virginia Dale.

On the same bill will be "The Lady With Red Hair," starring Miriam Hopkins.

Marion Miller Stars at Howard

Marion Miller, one of the season's biggest hits along the burlesque circuit, is maintaining her boxoffice rating this week at the Old Howard, where she heads the "Frisky Frolics" burlesquers' revue.

Other headliners are Pat Pareen, a before-the-war favorite in Paris; Marie Voe, Valerie, Harry Clexx and his assisting comics including J. B. Hamp.

MOTHER ROLES are enacted by Gale Page and Lola, Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, left to right, in "Four Mothers," coming tomorrow to the Paramount and Fenway screens.

COMEDY HIT STAYS ON LOEW'S SCREENS THROUGH FRIDAY

Gable, Lamarr Excellent In 'Comrade X' Fun Feast

A bearded Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr in a motorman's outfit are so delighting Loew's State and Orpheum patrons that the management is holding over its current attraction, "Comrade X," through Friday evening.

This is Gable's first comedy since "It Happened One Night," and again presents him as a newspaperman, this time a foreign correspondent in Russia. As for Miss Lamarr, Metro's four-star glamour-girl, it introduces her as an actress and a comedienne for the first time. And she is swell.

She has a fight with another girl (whom she suspects is her rival for Gable's affections) that is a honey. And she pulls no punches when she puts on the gloves with the great Gable. More than that, she can operate a Moscow street-car and drive a tank without losing her savoir-faire, to say nothing of her glamarr. She'll surprise you.

Prominently featured are those well-known picture-stealers, Oscar Homolka and Felix Bressart, and that first-rate stage comedienne, Eve Arden.

Also remaining over through Friday is "Gallant Sons," with Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Gene Reynolds, June Preisser, William Tracy and Leo Gorcey.

RUSSIAN GIRL Hedy Lamarr finds American newspaperman Clark Gable rather interesting in "Comrade X," comedy hit being held over through Friday night at Loew's State and Orpheum.

BOWDOIN'S PROGRAM

Bowdoin Square screen's new program, starting tomorrow and continuing through Friday, features "One Night in the Tropics," with Abbott and Costello, Allan Jones and Nancy Carroll, and "Charter Pilot," adventure yarn with Lynn Bari and Lloyd Nolan.

Kirby, Maxine Sullivan Headline New Boston Bill

Orchestra Leader John Kirby brings his "subtle swing" and dusky Maxine Sullivan her attention-getting swing versions of "Loch Lomond," "Annie Laurie," "Trees" and other favorites to the RKO Boston stage on Thursday.

These two are the co-stars of the new stage show which will continue through Sunday at the popular Washington st. Theater.

The musical world has hailed Kirby's individual interpretations as significant and sensational, and his cross-country tour with his orchestra has been a succession of triumphs.

Miss Sullivan, too, has carved a niche for herself with her swingy singing. She is regarded as one of the top recording artists in the country and one of the most talented of singers.

Marty May, comedian last seen here in "Three After Three," with Simone Simon, Mary Brian and Mitzi Green, returns as a featured member of the new RKO Boston stage show, which includes many other popular acts.

Heading the accompanying screen program will be the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys in the first-run picture, "Give Us Wings." The Dead Enders are seen as a group of young "grease monkeys" who recklessly accept an offer to fly the decrepit planes of a small-time aerial crop-dusting company. Supporting players include Victor Jory, Anne Gwynne and Shemp Howard.

B. C. Players At Shubert

It's Boston College night tonight at the Shubert Theater, where the victorious Eagles will be the guests of the management and Producer Kurt Kasznar at "Crazy With the Heat." The team is to be assigned to special boxes and will be introduced from the Shubert stage to the audience.

Some of the grid [illegible] even agreed to take part in some of the skits and [illegible] Willie Howard Ludin Gear [illegible] starring musical revue, "Crazy With the Heat."

Down In The Mogollons

By Alma and Paul Ellerbe

FIFTY-SIX, saddle-toughened and sun-bronzed, Steve Rawson sat comfortably but discontentedly in his big car. As it slid to a stop in front of the Union Station, he sighed and was about to open the door, when a battered little jalopy stuttered to a standstill almost under his nose.

The Cast of Characters in "Down in the Mogollons"

STEVE, who when he unexpectedly meet his old friend CHESS, forgets business and goes on a fishing trip.

ANGIE, Steve's wife, who is dangerously near going "arty."

Rawson's young colored chauffeur looked indignant. This wasn't the kind of outfit to rub elbows with his car, nor the shabby man in it the kind to stare familiarly at his employer.

But Rawson was staring back, into a fattish, soggy face, with a good natured droop to the wide easy mouth and deep furrows running up on either side of a slightly bulbous nose to mild deep-set pale grey eyes. It was a face full of humor and kindness and recognition had just plumped into it, radiating the countless little lines of a smile.

"Steve!" and "Chess!" said the two together; and Rawson was out before the other could move and standing there shaking his hand.

"God-almighty, but I'm glad to see you!" Chess Judkins said. "Must be ten years since we've met. How are you, Steve? Where you going all dressed up like that?"

"Chicago," Rawson said. He stood back and looked at his old friend. "How'd we ever lose each other, you and I? Where you going, looking so durned lousy and comfortable and happy and lazy?"

Chess smiled again. There was a dog on the back seat of his car and he smiled too.

"Oh, here and there—vacationing. Remember how we used to talk about turning loose some day if we ever got 'round to it? Well,"—Chess reached over and pulled an ear of the dog—"Casey and I've got 'round to it."

"How do you like it, as far as you've gone?"

"Well, it's funny. It's just exactly like I thought it'd be. Men don't change half as much as some people think. If I only had somebody along to talk to——"

Rawson eyed the battered car thoughtfully. Fishing rods projected from the back of it. The shiny barrels of a shotgun stuck up out of a miscellany of camping paraphernalia.

"I haven't been fishing—that is, cane-pole-and-worm-fishing — since I can remember." He leaned forward and spoke earnestly. "Williams here could say I'd gone to Chicago, and nobody would know any different, and—if you happened to have an extra suit of old clothes—"

There was a big sign over the entrance to the grounds; glad hand auto camp. It was just beyond the edge of Steve's own home city, but, "I wouldn't be any more lost," he had explained, "in the Malay jungle."

They had settled themselves in a corner off under some big cotton-woods, on the bank of a creek, with the whole range spread out before them, from Pike's Peak to Long's. Chess had pitched a little tent and established himself in a canvas chair, and Steve, in some of his friend's old clothes, lay in a hammock.

"It's none of my concern, but what about your business in Chicago?"

"Chess," Steve said, "I've made a lot o' money since you saw me last, and money's got its disadvantages. Remember the little 'dobe house Angie and I started out in, when I was running the first bunch of cattle I ever owned? Well, that little dump was ours. But the one we built in this town isn't ours any more—it's everybody's that knows Angie. And today it's full of culture and women. I haven't got any business in Chicago that couldn't be attended to at any other time just about as well. I was skinning out just to get away."

"That's tough."

"You remember the kind of girl Angie was."

"Two-handedest, straight-shootingest, level-headedest girl we knew."

"Yeah. But she's got a sister. She's one of these culture hounds. She's staying with us. And she's brought a Mrs. Marietta French with her, who writes occultist poetry. She's been giving readings every day in my house."

"That's bad."

"There's fifty of 'em there now and ten coming to dinner tonight. There's a young fellow dancing what the poetry means while this Mrs. French reads it."

"You'd have to go somewhere."

"Money's changed Angie. Money and Jessie—her sister. Jessie was born that way. Down at the bottom Angie hasn't changed; but she's changed every which way on top, and she's sure come to know a drift of phony females! I can't stand it, and I can't change her..."

The day wore on...A fellow with a fiddle came over and played and stayed to tell the story of his life. Steve relaxed. Garden variety Americans—he had needed them. He was one of them. Angie used to be one of them, too. He sighed.

Late that day the two old friends, talked-out and happy, sat together in satisfying silence. There was a road that wound through the camp ground and flunk out an extra loop to include their corner. A great shiny car came rolling along it.

But Steve Rawson, rancher, was off in the Mogollon Mountains of New Mexico reliving his honeymoon. The big shiny car, having inspected the camp, swung itself with entirely superfluous curiosity into his little extra loop and stopped.

Steve was the kind you couldn't rush. When the familiar figure on the radiator cap slid into his immediate foreground, he regarded it unblinkingly. When his eyes found the startled eyes of the young Negro at the wheel they passed on imperturbably to the woman inside.

He gave her a gaze of inscrutable impersonalness; and she returned it in kind—chatting quietly with another woman invisible to Steve, whose tones resembled those of Mrs. Marietta French—explaining that the camp was one of the city's real assets—chatting along for thirty seconds, perhaps; and then as casually as the summer breeze speaking the word that sent the big car rolling on.

Chess glanced after it without interest. Steve took the pipe out of his mouth and motioned toward the departing car.

"My wife," he said drily, "and Mrs. Marietta French."

It was another place after that.

"I shouldn't have done it!" Steve said. "We haven't been getting along, Angie and me, but everything's always been on the level between us. No lies about where I was going, or anything like that. I shouldn't have done it."

Chess comforted him as best he could.

"I was thinking," Steve said after awhile, "about our wedding trip. Down in the Mogollons." (He pronounced it Muggy-yones.) "Horseback, with a packhorse to carry the grub and an old A-tent. We got pretty close together on that trip, Angie 'n' me. I had the feeling we'd track along like that to the end. You see, I was a kind of a rough bird in those days. I thought there were men, and then, women; and that nothing could be more different. I thought when a man married he expected to get certain things and he'd have to pay for 'em in all sorts of ways. And I was scared that if Angie found out what I was really like she'd quit caring about me. Well, down there in the Muggy-yones, I found out I'd got what I expected and a whole lot besides; and hadn't paid anything; and wasn't going to have to. If you know what I mean."

"Yeah," Chess said "guess I do."

"I found out that what I thought I'd hidden had been clear to Angie and she was willing to take me the way God and quite a lot of hard luck had made me. It did more for me than anything that ever happened in all my life. I hadn't ought to have lied to a woman like that even once . . ."

The campfires winked out in the dusk, a phonograph droned and the smells of cooking stole abroad. Steve Rawson cooked a steak with onions and was ashamed at how much he liked it all. He guessed he was common and that's all there was to it. He did like to rub up against people and the ground and he'd never get over it. He remembered Angie as she was sitting there in the car looking at him; you couldn't expect that kind of woman to see anything in a place like this! Angie had gone on and he hadn't. He sighed and turned the steak.

And then that part of the cam was lit up by the lights of a racke ty little car with its top down an one person sitting in it that can chugging in with an air of nois determination, worked its wa round curve after curve and, a the two of them rose to their feet brought up almost on top of them

"Angie!" they said together, an "Where on earth did you get th car?" Steve said, because it w easier to say than any of the oth things he thought of.

She sat there and looked at h There was a smile in her eyes deep down in.

"Picked it up in a used car lot my way back from here. Hell Chess" and she held out her ha "I brought you a present, Steve on the back seat there."

"It's the old A-tent," he said Chess. "I was telling you about

"And," she said, stepping out the car tall and strong and khak clad in trousers and big fla pocketed jacket, "and the wom that goes with it! We're off,

"Angie!" they said together.

WAR AID BUDGET OF 17 BILLIONS

manufacturer to sell the "surplus" to the British.

The House appropriations committee has been working on draft of a bill for three days and is waiting only for delivery of the President's budget message tomorrow before introducing it. Congressional leaders have agreed to make British aid an appropriation bill and as such it will originate in the House and receive final consideration in the Senate.

The President today put the finishing touches on the budget message, convinced the American people fully support his avowed policy of committing the United States to the British cause against the dictators, regardless of cost or consequences.

ACHIEVES THREE PURPOSES

Intimates pictured the President as thoroughly satisfied with popular and congressional reaction to his unprecedented pledge of "all out" aid to embattled democracies even if it provokes the dictators into declaring war on the United States.

The President achieved three distinct purposes in his last two addresses — the fireside chat of Dec. 29 and his historic third-term speech to Congress yesterday. These purposes were:

1—To lift the morale of democratic peoples everywhere by forcefully predicting ultimate defeat of the dictators—as voiced first in the fireside chat and repeated in his address to Congress.

2—To warn the dictators the United States will be turned into an arsenal for the democracies, even if it means war—as he told Congress.

3—To inform the American people they must be prepared for grave personal sacrifices if they wish to preserve democracy in this continent and to warn "slackers" they can expect little mercy from the government—as he told Congress.

Harry Hopkins, en route to London as the President's personal representative, is expected, among other things, to explain the lease-lend setup.

17-BILLION BUDGET

The President will present an extraordinary budget, reportedly totalling at least $17,000,000,000 and envisioning a deficit of at least $8,000,000,000.

Urgent requirements to build the U. S. into a formidable arsenal for the democracies will take approximately $10,000,000,000, it is reported. The Army and Navy each will need $3,000,000,000 more for emergency national defense, lease-and-lend aid to Britain will take another $3,000,000,000 and another billion will be required for counter-espionage and a variety of other vital defense moves.

Mr. Roosevelt will tell Congress, as he has told White callers, the "normal" budget for operation of government has been pared to the bone, but even so it is expected to run about $7,000,000,000.

Despite certain non-intervention opposition, particularly in the Senate where debate is uncontrolled, congressional leaders are hopeful the aid bill can be pushed through in from six to eight weeks.

KNUDSEN DEFENSE CZAR

Mealwhile, the President completed work on an executive order which will create the office of production management, establishing William S. Knudson as virtual national defense "Czar" with the assistance of Labor Leader Sidney Hillman and War and Navy Secretaries Stimson and Knox. The White House expects to issue the order before nightfall.

British Air Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding and Arthur Purvis, director of the British purchasing mission, today discussed integration of America and Great Britain's air production program for half an hour with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Later no further would discussion [illegible] garden gate. Also most of the large works are tastefully decorated on the outside with such amounts of paint that the makers must be making enough profit to pay for the war!

YOUTH IN UNIFORM

You would also notice that most of the young men are in uniform. You notice the lack of them in picture halls and at church—the only young men there being the ones in sheltered trades.

I suppose you will have read about the "wail of the sirens." It's a most peculiar sound that never fails to give me a queer feeling, and turn me momentarily pale.

I wouldn't say it is fear, because when we are in bed, and it is not my night on duty, we don't get up, but there is a feeling of strain, and a grand sense of relief when the "all clear" goes.

The rationing hasn't hit us very hard. We don't use all our meat allowance, we can manage on the butter, etc., that we get. The thing that has hit us worst is bacon—it happens to be my favorite dish!

NO GRUMBLING

Anyway, what you can't get you can always do without! There are lots of people who couldn't afford bacon and butter before the war, so why should we grumble?

And I think that's enough about us. If you have any friends with relations over here, tell them not to worry about them. They won't starve, and Englishmen like to have a bit of excitement going on!

How are all you going on? I suppose you have got over the wee tions by now and are looking forward to Christmas. By the way, I hope you like this photo of Sally. It was taken in our back garden when we were tea ing this summer.

Well, here's wishing you all the best for Christmas and New Year. With lots and lots of love,

SALLY AND JA

THOSE MEMBERS OF CONGRESS and other citizens who are endeavoring to prevent this country from becoming embroiled in the European war have received the vigorous support of the Holy Name Society, one of the oldest and most venerable organizations in the Roman Catholic Church.

In his annual address to more than 2000 members gathered at their union service in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, asked not only for prayers for peace and spiritual guidance, but also for action to show Congress the vast majority of Americans do not want war.

Speaking as a plain citizen the eminent Catholic leader made it clear that he was neither a pacifist nor an appeaser, but a man of peace who felt obligated to flay the Machiavellian attempts of propagandists to lure this country into war.

The hatreds they "cooked up," he warned the Society, blinded people to the truth.

"God help us," the Cardinal said, "the propagandists want us to be plunged into that sort of thing. Who? Let us find who and why!"

He warned them, too, against "some of our high and mighty neighbors" who developed a love for the United States in time of crisis, but had "queer ways of showing their friendliness" when American help was not needed.

Disdaining the mockers of peace the Cardinal said:

"I am praying night and day—I know you all are—that God will grant peace to the world. Is there any crime in that? Even though some people don't believe in God, is there any crime in our praying?

"We do believe in God; we believe He loves His children and wants them to return to order, peace and prosperity, which are His blessings. That is our faith; that is our faith as Christians and Americans."

Thus does a great churchman affirm his faith and point the way for his flock. Boldly, fearlessly he cries forth the word of Him whose teachings are ever clothed in the words of the Angels heralding His coming.

"—And on earth, peace to men of good-will."

"NO PRIVATE COMPANY would dare give me a berth. Certain elements in the CIO would raise so much hell that no company could afford it."

The statement is that of Captain Joseph A. Gainard whose amazing story is being told in a series of articles in this newspaper.

Captain Gainard was master of S. S. City of Flint on the memorable, heroic voyage that saw her first taken by the Nazis then again restored to his command. He was the captain on the bridge when his ship rescued 236 of the torpedoed Athenia's survivors. A few weeks ago the Secretary of the Navy pinned the two-ounce Navy Cross, awarded for great valor, upon his breast.

But he can't get a ship in the United States merchant marine service because he once characterized and treated as mutiny (which it was) a sit-down strike of some members of his crew.

Captain Gainard's story is a powerful indictment of what he prefers to call "foreign influences" that have come into control of men who serve the merchant marine. We prefer to call those influences Communism.

As Captain Gainard himself points out:

"I am no anti-union man either. Put that down."

His quarrel and our quarrel and the quarrel of the American people is not with unionism, nor with the Congress for Industrial Organization but with the foreign influences that, in few cases happily enough, have gained control of certain unions and in this particular case have shown themselves powerful enough to "beach" an American sea hero.

The sooner the maritime union purges itself of foreign control (and it is inwardly strong enough to do the job itself) the better for the union and America.

A GREAT AND enthusiastic homecoming welcome to the Boston College football team Saturday was marred by failure of the authorities adequately to police the concourse of the South Station. Police and the railroads leasing South Station failed to anticipate the size of the crowd although sufficient warning was given hours in advance of the train's arrival.

In consequence, few in the crowd saw any of the players and the players themselves were deprived of the orderly, official welcome to which they were entitled. The fault was not in the crowd itself but in the failure to handle it. Fortunately none was seriously injured in the crush and in the collapse of the welcoming stand.

Many who had made no plans to greet the team found themselves caught in the crowd and unable to reach the tracks on which their outbound trains awaited them. A similar condition, though not as bad, existed at the time of President Roosevelt's last visit to Boston.

Authorities should have learned by now that occasions calling for the handling of big crowds in the South Station require a large force of uniformed police and roped-off lanes.

HOW MANY HOURS a night do you sleep? Said Diogenes: "Six hours sleep for a man, seven for a woman, eight for a fool." George Herbert claimed and has much scientific support: "One hour's sleep before midnight is worth three afterwards."

USUALLY spring out of bed around 9:30 after from 8 to 10 hours sleep. Noted an eminent medico stated a man needed but six hours sleep; that the time above that occupied in slumber was wasted and could be more usefully applied. Decided to get up three hours earlier, figuring I could apply the time saved to something useful such as pitch and putt golf, chasing butterflies, going to organ recitals or the horse races. So this morning I sprang from my downy couch at 6:30 and called to my pup who was slumbering peacefully in a corner. "Up! Up! Thou sluggard and answer the salute of the dawn!" The pup opened his eyes gradually, looked at me incredulously and then, evidently deciding he was dreaming, turned over and went to sleep again. "Come! Come! My lad!" I cried. "Awake! Awake! The lark's at heaven's gate.' I shook him and he wearily arose and stretched. When I returned from the shower he was again peacefully sleeping. This time on his back. And he was snoring, too. Now I ask, in all fairness, what sort of future is there in store for a two-year-old hunting dog that won't get up in the morning?

"NOW YOU tell us how to keep a husband," writes an Albany, N. Y., client. Certainly, ma'am. Everybody else has done that, why not me? Feed the husband good food artistically served. Give him a royal reception when he comes home at night. Have a warm bath, clean clothes and an easy chair ready for him. Get him a good dog. Let him go on fishing trips. Never tell him what a tough day you have had until he tells you what a tough day he has had. And do your telling after he has had his dinner and a rest. Bring up no controversial subjects at the breakfast table. And when you are showing affection, let yourself go as you did in the moonlight in the yesteryear. This latter may be a little difficult, but in that case you could turn out the lights and imagine you are kissing Clark Gable, Robert Taylor or Lee B. Wood.

GRETA GARBO'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY SOUGHT
Durling Thinks Story Would Be Something

THEIR STORIES: General Dawes has written his autobiography. Why doesn't Greta Garbo write hers. That would be really something. Suggested title: "I Wanted to Go Home." And Gloria Swanson, how about hers with title "Confessions of Gloria Swanson." Would sell a million copies. And Bing Crosby's life story where is it? Can't give Bing title for whole autobiography but can suggest one chapter heading: "A Horse, My Kingdom for a Horse."

-:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Monday — We have just come back from the Capitol, where we listened to the President deliver his message to Congress.

Of necessity, a message to Congress is in fairly general terms. It cannot specify all the ways and means by which certain objectives are to be accomplished. I felt, however, that in this message, our national objectives were fairly clearly stated, and some of the details which will have to be later put into legislative form by Congress, were at least plainly indicated.

It did not seem to me that anything in this message was of more interest to the Democrats than to the Republicans. On the whole, while there might later be some difference of opinion as to the methods of carrying out the objectives, there seemed to be nothing that members of Congress of all parties could not accept as representing their stand in relation to the interests of their country.

THEREFORE, I was not only astonished but saddened, to notice that the applause came almost entirely from the Democrats and only a few noticeable exceptions on the Republican side raised a hand in approval at any point. It looked to me as though these members of Congress were saying to the country as a whole:

"We are Republicans first. We represent you here in Congress, not as citizens of the United States in a period of great crisis, but as members of a political party which seeks primarily to promote its own partisan interests."

This is to me shocking and terrifying. There was running through my mind as I watched them, in what would have been an act of childish spite if it had not been such a serious moment in history, the lines of a song which was popular when I was young: "I don't want to play in your yard. I don't love you any more."

Sometimes I wonder if it will take the suffering of the peoples in conquered countries and those who are still fighting for their freedom today to make us realize that there are times when it matters little whether you are a Republican or a Democrat. The wings of the eagle cannot be clipped, either because you have economic interests or political differences.

Our eagle has always soared high in the skies. He represents the spirit and heart of a people who care for nothing as much as liberty and justice, and I think he will represent such a people to the end. Few of our citizens, no matter what their political affiliations, will applaud their representatives in a partisan attitude on questions which can have no partisan taint.

Surely all of us can be united in a foreign policy which seeks to aid those people who fight for freedom and thereby gives us the hope of present peace for ourselves and a future peace for the world founded on the four great principles enunciated today.

HOPE DARE WRITES FOR PHOTOGRAPHS

By Leonard Lyons

THE DANISH CONSUL in Buenos Aires is noted for his fearlessness, and for the way in which he continues every day to issue anti-Nazi communiques. From the time the Germans occupied his country, he has been writing articles denouncing the Nazi aggressors and enlisting Pan-American sympathies in the cause of Denmark . . . One of the Nazi officials in Buenos Aires finally called upon the Danish Consul, confronted him with these articles and suggested they stop. "You have relatives in Denmark," said the Nazi, "and they will be held as hostages for your co-operation" . . . "On the contrary," said the Dane, turning to complete his anti-Nazi article of the day. "YOU'RE the one who is the hostage. Because, frankly, if anything happens to them, I will kill you. Good day."

ROBERT E. SHERWOOD was a speaker at the ceremonies dedicating Jo Davidson's statue of Walt Whitman at Bear Mountain . . . The statue of the great, bearded poet, Whitman, is one of the best works of the great bearded sculptor, Davidson—and it bears some resemblance to Jo . . . "Now it's a little confusing," Sherwood confided. "Sometimes I don't know whether it's a statue of Whitman by Davidson – or a statue of Davidson by Whitman" . . . Doris Nolan, the screen star, returned from Hollywood to appear in "Cue for Passion," the play which closed last Saturday after a short run . . . Saturday night Miss Nolan packed her belongings at the theater and then went to Sardi's. She seated herself at a corner table, sipped some coffee, and then tried to see what time it was. But a large vase filled with flowers obstructed her view of the clock in the rear of the restaurant . . . "Why don't you remove that vase so that we can see what time it is?" Miss Nolan suggested to Vincent Sardi, Jr. . . . "Oh, why bother about the time," the young restaurateur told her. "You're not working."

Hope Dare, wife of Dixie Davis, has written to Murray Korman, the Broadway photographer, asking him to send her the photos he made of Hope when she danced in the Follies. She needs them to inaugurate her return to the theater . . . Roy Howard was asked yesterday whether he plans to fly to Japan. "No prospect of it, the way I stand with the Administration," replied Howard. "I don't think I could get a passport."

A DISTINGUISHED French writer, who came to America two months ago, told a New York friend: "America is a wonderful country. I've been here only a short time and I already feel at home" . . . "That's not remarkable," said the friend. "You—with your great writing talents—where, in this whole world, wouldn't you feel at home?" . . . The Frenchman sighed and answered: "In France" . . . Winthrop Rockefeller, the town's most eligible bachelor, spent New Year's Eve alone—drafting a reply to the inquiries concerning his enlistment as a private in the U. S. Army . . . Governor Lehman's address to the State Legislature, when it convenes this month, will stress only National Defense . . . The plan whereby American merchant ships would take over British shipping routes in the Pacific so that British vessels would be released for urgent war service in the Atlantic—the plan which was announced from London last night—first was brought to this country last spring, by Ambassador Joe Kennedy, during his short vacation here . . . Quentin Reynolds will return from London on Jan. 7.

EXCLUSIVE: Mutual loyalties may exclude a bidding match, but if the somewhat tenuous situation of Coach Frank Leahy and Boston College should, for any reason, become strained, Dartmouth is one of the colleges sure to be prominent in the auction for the Eagles mentor and his staff.

DARTMOUTH IS PREPARED to go higher than the Boston College authorities if it is possible to secure Messrs. Leahy, Druze, McKeever and McArdle as tutors of the wearers of the Green . . . Coach Leahy may return from Florida, refreshed after a few days vacation, and announce at the Chamber of Commerce dinner for his team, that he has signed a five-year contract to coach at the Heights.

TEMPORARILY, HOWEVER, THE SITUATION is very much unsettled . . . The annual remuneration of Leahy and his three assistants has been $10,500 . . The arrangement called for Frank to pay two of his aides from a total of $9500, and the other of his three assistants received $1000 a year . . . In the terms submitted, a much more generous set of figures appear on the document . . . But that document isn't signed yet

FRIENDS OF BOSTON COLLEGE and Coach Leahy feel sure that the former Fordham line coach would give grave consideration to the debt he owes the local institution for giving him his big chance two seasons ago . . And the combination has proved such a "natural" that it would be semi-tragic to split it.

THOSE WHO BELIEVE the situation will be settled satisfactorily point to the long tenure Sleepy Jimmy Crowley has enjoyed at Fordham, a sister institution of Boston College, both being Jesuit colleges.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: In Miami Beach proper, the nightclubs doing the biggest business thus far this season are the Latin Quarter and The Beachcomber . . . Bostonians operate both . . . Lou Walters, boss of the Latin Quarter—there and here and at Falmouth is home for a brief look-see at his intown club . . . Before he leaves for Florida again, news may come of another unit of the Latin quarter chain being installed at a northern resort.

HIS FLORIDA SUCCESS may be responsible for Mr. Walters' decision to unsnap the elastic from his bulging bankroll . . . Hal Le Roy, the dancer, has been signed to open Sunday at the Boston Latin Quarter . . . Since his triumph at the New York Versailles, Mr. Le Roy comes high . . . Another unexpected major booking at the Winchester st. spot is that of Helen Kane.

MISS KANE WAS KNOWN AS "the boop-a-doop" girl in the last boom . . . She and Dan Healey opened their own night club in New York last fall and, although is was a failure, the hoorah served to bring her to the attention—favorably of other cabaret proprietors.

MEMO TO GEORGE CLARKE: After her husband's funeral Ruby ducked out of Boston and kept out of the limelight in New York . . . The chief reason for her trip was to avoid proposals of marriage from several ardent suitors, who, in Ruby's opinion, were unseemly in their haste . . . Reports of an Occidental suitor, however, have caused her to "lose face," and the Orientals "lose face" along their own, individual lines.

SHE WOULD APPRECIATE it greatly if you scotched the rumor at once (being too shy to make the request herself), on the grounds that your source of information, although usually reliable, interpreted the matter incorrectly . . . Ruby, by the way, has an offer for her Providence Beachcomber, which is winning back the original investment too slowly for the impetuous Mrs. Foo.

PHIL BAKER AND HIS AGENT arrived in Boston in order, he says, "to see a couple of shows" . . . It was a show, "All In Fun," which caused him so much distress recently that friends wondered whether he'd ever be able to enjoy a show again.

JUDY CANOVA STARS IN 'SIS HOPKINS'

By Louella O. Parsons

Judy Canova

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7—The gag about the actor who was called to the telephone and when he returned found his picture at Republic was finished, no longer holds good. If I were asked what film company has expanded the most in 1940 I would have to say this same Republic, which only yesterday was a small independent operating on a shoe string. "Sis Hopkins" will cost $750,000 and that is exclusive of the $50,000 paid for the film rights.

Judy Canova, the star, will have a cast surrounding her as big as you will find in any of the major companies' pictures—Charles Butterworth and Jerry Colonna will furnish the comedy with Bob Crosby, brother of Bing, in the dramatic lead. Susan Hayward is being tested for Sis Hopkins' cousin Judy's first picture. "Scatterbrain," was voted one of the best general comedies of the year. Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

WHILE THE PRESIDENT asked Congress for increased appropriations to aid England, Bostonians were being reminded last evening that we cannot sacrifice the hide and health of our own people to alleviate suffering in Europe . .

This message was delivered by Henry F. Guild, sincere and hard working chairman of Boston's 1941 Community Fund drive, which received a big boost at the mammoth preliminary dinner at the Copley-Plaza . . . The drive, which is planned to raise $4,883,000 for the support of 200 Greater Boston health and social agencies, will be on from Jan. 13 to Feb. 5 . . .

Good neighbors, as all the fund workers are affectionately termed, gathered some 1000 strong for the dinner, and though it is primarily a serious occasion, it is also a fashionable and social affair as well .

In the hustle and bustle of arriving guests we noted Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Fiske joining Mrs. William B Long and Mr. and Mrs. Eben Draper at a table in the corner of the ballroom . . Mrs. Fiske's lovely black gown had a deep pink yoke trimmed with bands of black fringe . . . She wore short, pink antelope gloves to match and carried a large sable muff . . . Mrs. Long wore a black dinner gown, with a white sweater top embroidered with gold sequins . . .

Mrs. John L. Grandin, with her snowy white hair piled high in curly ringlets, wore a mustard yellow shirtmaker dinner gown, with a jewelled belt clasp, and pearl drops in her ears . . . She shared a table with her son and his bride, the junior J. L. G.'s, Mr. and Mrs. Morton P. Prince and Mrs. Robert Gray Dodge . . . Mrs. Prince, lending a very attentive ear to the speakers, wore a ruby red velvet gown with long, tight sleeves, a pearl necklace and sparkling earrings . . .

WEARING a modish plum wood dress and matching hat trimmed with dusty pink and blue feather quills, Eleanor Dodge, daughter of socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Dodge of Boston, was photographed at a recent luncheon in the interests of the Community Fund drive.

Socialites Rally to Aid Drive

GENEROUS OF BOTH TIME and money in supporting the institutions which provide swimming pools, gyms, cooking and sewing classes, libraries, manual training and all sorts of health supervision for thousands of youngsters and grownups as well in this city, Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett Harwood and Mrs. Charles Devens were among the many distinguished guests . . . Mr. Wolcott, as vice-chairman of the drive, was a head table guest . . .

Nothing succeeds when Chairman Guild stressed the fact that although foreign relief should not be neglected, charity begins at home . . . Mrs. John Hallowell, the young Talbot Bakers, Mr. Russell Hallowell, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sherwood, all dining at the same sparkling tables . . .

Dorothy Bartlett, who attended with her father, added inches to her war relief kitty during the speeches, and so did Virginia Ellis, who is serving as publicity chairman of the educational division of the drive . . . Dorothy wore an unusual gown of red and gold rose-eye material, with a full length wrap of figured brocade accented by a brilliant green pocketbook . . Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., brightened her black velvet gown with a vivid flame crepe sash and corsage of flame roses . . . She shared a table with the Henry Masons, Jr. . . .

Wears Gown of Two-Tone Flowered Crepe

ENJOYING A SOCIABLE CHAT with friends during the bustle of checking wraps in the lobby, Mrs. John L. Saltonstall made a lovely appearance in a two-tone blue flowered crepe gown. Mrs. Robert Herrick was a mass of glitter from head to toe . . . her gown of black sequins topped by a novel little hat of the same sparkling fabric . . . Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Herrick, Jr., always outstanding in a group of well-dressed women, wore a striking brown dinner gown with a long sleeved bodice of brown sequins . . .

Still others attending were Betty Dumaine, Eleanor Dodge, youthful Warden of Vassar College and daughter of the Robert Gray Dodges of Boston, Mrs. Robert Cushman, Faith Thoron in a colorful lime green chiffon gown with a wide cherry red sash, Mrs. Edwin S. Webster and Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Danforth.

Style Parade At Lecture

A full house greeted John Mason Brown, New York drama critic, who returned to Boston yesterday to lecture in the Women's Civic Federation's third of a series of morning talks on the theater. As usual at Mr. Brown's lectures, the Copley-Plaza ballroom was jammed to the doors.

Mrs. Moses Williams, Federation president, introduced Mr. Brown, and Mrs. John Gorham Palfrey occupied the rostrum for a few moments to ask the ladies to donate anything they can spare in the way of linens and sheets for the next shipment the Federation is sending to Britain.

A bright spot in the audience was provided by Mary Elizabeth Sweetland Hume hat and purse, which she wore with a beige coat. Lucy Pope also wore a beige coat to accent her long white ostrich.

As smartly [illegible] as ever, Mrs. John O'Day presided with her daughter, Dorothy. Mrs. O'Day wore a small velvet hat with a black tweed coat and Dorothy topped her white dress with a matching turban.

You Can Be Beautiful

'Cleansing Milk' Beautifies, Clarifies Your Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

IN THESE days of scientific "substitutions" one of the greatest, natural beauty aids in the world might have been overlooked . . . except that science has come along to make it as easy to use, but much more effective, than your regular cleansing cream. Milk was a beauty miracle-worker in its original state . . . but difficult to handle . . . now it is a much more efficient, much more potent help.

In case you've ever wondered about the "milk" preparations that have now and then appeared to claim your attention . . . actually, the percentage of milk contained in them was negligible. With the stringent rules in force today, this, then, is the only milk cosmetic which can claim that it is made of 80 per cent whole milk. And this is pasteurized, dairy-sweet milk that can be kept with all its wonderful values intact for any length of time, or in any climate!

It's a "cleansing milk" which is used like a cross between soap and cream . . . and it leaves the skin wonderfully refreshed . . . and has a definite clarifying radiance-making effect . . . as you'll discover when you've used it for as little as a week.

The delicious-looking creamy stuff is smoothed all over the face and throat . . . don't remove make up, because it will be wafted away, every speck of it, in a moment or so. Allow the fragrant cream to "set" on your face for two minutes . . . longer if you can . . . and then wash it off with the little foam sponge which is given with the little tub of cream.

If you'd like complete information on this startling new cosmetic, "cleansing milk" . . . which has 80 per cent whole milk in it, beautifying and clarifying . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Make These Lovely Slip Covers at Home

Do you grow green with envy at the lovely slip-cover styles blossoming on the pages of your pet magazine? By the pin-on method you can make any cover you've admired, right in your own home—and so inexpensively!

Heavy cretonne looks almost like imported linen and wears beautifully. And you couldn't choose a more stunning pattern than the one we've pictured—American beauty red with touches of green on an oyster-white ground.

In covering a sofa, you remove the cushions and begin by smoothing fabric down inside back and over seat of each section, allowing a 4-inch margin where back and seat join. If the fabric has a definite motif be sure to center it on each part and, if you wish professional looking welted seams, work with material wrong side out.

Now pin along lines of the upholstery and cut 2½ inches outside pins to allow for seams. In the same way fit arms, sides and back.

When cover is pinned up, remove and baste. Then, after trying on for any little adjustments, stitch. At this point, too, you add the smart skirt a straight piece of... of fabric with kick pleats at the ... sofa corners.

Consumers' Problems Listed

By MARTHA LEE

The 23d annual Union Agricultural meeting will be held at the Memorial Auditorium in Worcester tomorrow, Thursday and Friday.

While the show seemingly is for farmers, actually consumer demands dominate the lectures, discussions and demonstrations which have to do with the production and marketing of agricultural products—for the aim and purpose of all production is consumption.

Some of the subjects to be discussed are:

"Raising Blue Ribbon Kids."
"Nutrition of the Apple Tree."
"A Consumer Looks at Apples."
Keeping Up-to-date in the Vegetable Game."
"Bee-keeping Programs for Children."
"Marketing of Turkeys."
"Raising and Marketing Fine Draft Horses."
"Fire Defense as I Saw It in England."

These are but a few of the many subjects scheduled for the 85 men and women guest speakers from 10 different states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

This meeting is of interest to city as well as farm women. Each year more attention is given to feminine visitors. Group meetings and the industrial exhibits show special adaptations to home interests. "Fixing Up Your House and Liking It" will appeal to city and country homemakers—and men, too. "Medical Problems of Homogenized Milk" and "Paper Milk Containers," while intended for technically trained ears, are two subjects of particular interest to the average consumer. The lunch room service conducted by 4-H Club boys and girls is always an admired and appreciated feature.

CONTEST PRIZES

In conjunction with this meeting, the New England Fresh Egg Institute is offering prizes for the best write-up telling "Why I Use Fresh Eggs as a Food." There will be three cash prizes of $5, $3 and $2 each, and in addition there will be ten World's Poultry Congress Cook Books distributed to those who do not win a cash prize, but who submit the next best write-ups. The purpose of this contest is to encourage the use of fresh eggs.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

1—Send your write-up to the New England Fresh Egg Institute, 667 Main st., Worcester, before Jan. 8, with a top of an egg carton or a label showing that you use fresh eggs.

2—Do not write over 200 words.

3—Write your name and address clearly on the copy you submit.

4—Entries for the consumer contest will be limited to Massachusetts.

This great winter show for farmers invites everyone to Worcester to attend the meetings held this week.

$2,000.00
SECOND PRIZE
and 98 Other Awards

The GAME of CHECK

Stay up to date with the Game of Check! Stay with the contest so that you can win $10,000.00, $2000.00, $1000.00 or any other of the 97 generous awards to be paid.

Be sure to submit your answers on time and in accordance with the rules. That's the way to go about making that glorious Ten Thousand Dollar First Prize your very own!

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record American GAME of CHECK is open to all persons living in the New England States. However, no employees of the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, nor any newspaper dealers, and carriers who deliver the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, nor any person acting as proxy for another, nor any person who has won $500 or more in any contest, may win a prize.

2—Beginning Monday, October 14, 1940, a Check Sheet will be published each weekday in the Boston American and Boston Record. Each Check Sheet will contain three cartoon questions. Four and only four suggested answers will be printed under each cartoon question and in the daily Check Sheet. One and only one of these suggested answers is the correct one new to the question appearing above. The six Check Sheets published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen series. Answers to each week's series of cartoon questions should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor, P. O. Box 2337, c/o the Boston Record American Game of Check. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their answers, achieve the 100 highest scores. A Check Sheet will not be judged on a guillotine cut and every question will be judged separately. That a contestant will get credit for each question correctly answered the contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie breaking questions and if necessary, a second, third or fourth set of tie breaking questions. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solutions of such tie breaking questions.

At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to mark the tie breaking questions without assistance or the efforts of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of Check Sheets with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of Check Sheets and who in all either make correct to the rule of the contest the Boston Record American will present a special quiz booklet created by Harold Hart author of the famous quiz volume, "Invitation to Fun."

6—Any person by entering this contest understands it is a contest of individual effort and agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time before or after January 27th, the closing date for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the establishment of time limitation, the judging of answers, the scoring of answers, and interpretation of such instructions governing individual questions as may be announced by the officials of the contest. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes nor will any claim to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. Will more than one prize will be awarded to members of any one immediate family. The Boston Record American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record American to the contestant.

Anne Morgan Back From War

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 7 (AP)—Delayed 24 hours by a northwest gale, the American Export liner Exeter arrived today from Lisbon with 131 passengers, including 65 Americans.

Among them was Miss Anne Morgan, head of the American Friends of France, who was met at the pier by her brother, J. P. Morgan. She said lack of funds for her organization caused her to return and added there was no interference by German authorities in her relief work.

Merrill Mueller of the International News Service also returned on the liner. He is writing an official RAF book for the reading public of the United States.

You Can Get a $25 LOAN for 2 Months for 94¢

REPAY IN 2 INSTALLMENTS OF $12.97

You can borrow $100 if you can pay back $6.41 a month

You can get a personal loan of $20 to $300 at Household Finance at rates substantially below the lawful maximum—if you can repay in small monthly installments.

Payments to fit your purse

You may choose the most convenient repayment plan from the table below. Suppose that you need $100 and you can readily repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the sample loans and payment plans in the table. (Loans also made in other amounts and for other periods.) Payments in the table repay everything. Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 is less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law and is the same to everyone.

Simple to borrow

We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or your personal note.) No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. You don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the papers.

BILL CORUM'S GOAL:

Make a Bowl Team And Retire Rich

(Pinch Hitting for Austen Lake Who Is in Texas)

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 7—Some of you delightful and charming readers may be wondering why at our age and weight we have undertaken an eating tour of the country. So before we pitch into the fruits of the bayou mariniere, the boulibaisse, the bayou cook oysters, the pompano papillote, the jumbo frogs legs and the redsnapper courtboillon, etc., of this fancy eating town, let us explain.

BILL CORUM

We have gone into training to play a stationary guard in some all-star football game next January one. It doesn't matter which all-star bowl game, so long as the offer is all right.

We have recently learned, and this is dead on the level, of one gridiron star who was offered $2,000 to play in a certain game, $500 for two signed newspaper articles describing his feelings before and after the epic encounter, $500 for a couple of personal appearances, and $500 for a radio talk.

In addition, he was to have at his disposal after the game a private yacht with a bevy of the most beautiful young ladies of the community as hostesses, for a cruise of his own choice and duration and on which he could bring any personal friends he wished.

I repeat that such an offer was made in seriousness, indeed, dead earnest, and could name names if pressed.

That sounds like good work if you can get it to do, doesn't it? A lot of tired business men have had to work all their lives to get hold of a couple of private yachts, to say nothing of a hand-picked crew of beauteous maidens. Blondes for the fo'castle, red-heads for the top mizzen-mast, and brunettes for the after-hatch, no doubt.

When I heard of that bona fide offer, I immediately made my only New Year's resolution for 1941—to make the bowl team next year. It is true that I was something less than a Willie Heston in the days that I quarter-backed the Boonville High School team, but the newspaper pieces, the radio and personal appearances should come comparatively easy.

That left only the game itself to consider. And I figured that if I could put on about 75 more pounds I'd look pretty good as a stationary guard in a low-charging line.

The last 59½ minutes of the game will no doubt be tough on the wind, but the thought of that yacht, those maidens and all those easy cocoannts will brace me to make a goal line stand that will rock any stadium to which I am invited with cheers.

My mind is made up. They'll not keep me off the team at those prices.

Now Is the Time for Thought

SERIOUSLY THE BOWL boys have reached the place in their hysteria for New Year's Day gridiron attractions where they'd be wise to pause and do a little thinking. I see where a Los Angeles all-star game had to be cancelled after tickets were sold. Since it was to be a charity game for British war relief, that is too bad in one way. In another way it is for the best. There are as many bowl games in this country right now as the traffic will stand.

The East-West Shrine game in San Francisco is a fixture. It is a game that has done more real good than all the other bowl games put together. It lives up to its slogan about the strong running so that the weak may walk, and thousands of crippled children have been cured, or partially cured, because of it. It is a game that should be preserved and nobody permitted to chisel in on it on any pretext.

Incidentally, it was in the East-West game that a couple of lads named Reagan and Harmon got a gander at a young man named Paul Christman, who, I believe, hails from somewhere out around Missouri. Harmon and Reagan got the headlines before the game. All "Pitching Paul" got was the touchdowns while it was being played.

I'm told that one of the ends on the West team, who never had seen Christman before, made the statement after the game that a blind man could catch Paul's passes.

"All you have to do with that guy at any distance" this player whose name escapes me for the moment is reported to have said, "is hold up your arms and he'll drop that ball in the basket like a feather."

Some of the pro promoters and coaches have said that Christman is too slow. May be. May be. It isn't for me to argue with 'em. I just happen to recall that they said the same thing about Luckman, and to know that there is nothing in the rules that

BRUINS CALL ON ROOKIES TO CHECK WINGS' STREAK

By FRANK FENWAY

Gliding into town on the blades of the fanciest pace in hockey, the Red Wings of Detroit will try tonight to hand out shellacking number six in succession; this time to our Bruins in the Garden.

The Wings have a very special reason for wanting to capture tonight's fray. The last club to topple them was the Clan of Ross, who took them 5 to 2 in their home town a couple of weeks back.

Since then the auto citizens have twice beaten Toronto and Chicago and kayoed the Canadiens, and they vow, by gum, that they ain't astoppin' their winning ways tonight.

CONACHER BACK

Naturally the Bruins have far different ideas on the subject. It is the pardonable intention of our lads to show Messrs. Goodfellow and mates how hockey winning streaks are stopped.

Back to aid in the teaching, at long last, is blonde Roy Conacher, the great young Bruin wing, who has been sitting them out, in the best of company, because of a twisted cartilege in the knee.

Dr. Marty Crotty, a very busy gentleman these days with the injury jinx still riding with the Bruins, announced that Roy's tricky gam is once again enjoying the best of health and that he can step out on the ice tonight without fear of it buckling in ordinary going.

COWLEY NEEDS DOCTOR'S O.K.

There is a possibility, too, that Bill Cowley, still the league's leading scorer despite a week from the wars, may be physically fit to start.

Bill has been home attending the wedding of a sister and upon his return today will undergo an examination. If Dr. Crotty gives him a "thumbs up" at its conclusion, Bill will be alongside the youngest of the Conachers.

Still more reinforcements to stop this current surge of the lads from Detroit will be present in the Bruins' lineup. Gordie Bruce and Buck Pat McReavy have been yodelled home from Hershey and they will reunite with their old teammate "Terry" Reardon to form a new "kid" line.

The recall of these two lads results in the Bruins having more men on tap than they can legally use, which means that either Flash Hollett, Herbie Cain or Mel Hill will remain in civvies for the evening.

MOWER EYES VEZINA CUP

To stop the Red Wings' streak the Bruins will have to find ways and means of wooing the little black disc past the capable frame of Rookie Johnny Mowers, who has been doing a sensational job enacting the old wowser, "They shall not pass."

The youthful Detroiter has allowed only 43 goals in 23 games and is leading all other goalers in the battle for the coveted Vezina trophy.

However, 10 of those goals have been scored by the Bruins in their three tussles with the Wings and theyfeel they have Mr. Mowers' number. We shall see.

RAY CHAISSON
Faces Huskies Tonight

KO KO KID—Pat McReavy gets his chance tonight to prove to Art Ross of the Bruins that he is capable of playing big league hockey. Recalled from the Hershey club when injuries struck down several of the Bruins, McReavy will team with old Hershey friends, Gordon Bruce and Terry Reardon, in the third line against the fast flying Wings at the Garden.

Unbeaten Huskies Test B. C. Sextet

For the first time this season Boston College's hockey team will have no competition from the football brethern when they collide with potent Northeastern in the feature game of a college doubleheader at the Arena tonight.

In the other game on the card Boston University will return to the hockey wars after a three-week layoff when it clashes with Middlebury.

Though not too many people are aware that Boston College is represented by a hockey team this year, which in its chosen field, compares favorably with the power of the nationally famous grid machine.

Northeastern, with the likes of Capt. Johnny Chipman, George Ross, Fred Cusick, and Carl Westlund available is worthy opposition for any college six. The Huskies, who are unbeaten this season and have defeated Harvard, Boston University and M. I. T., will be the underdog in tonight's clash but won't be a beaten team at least until the final whistle.

Boston College, winner of four straight after losing its opener to Yale, has averaged within a fraction of 10 goals per game while defeating M. I. T., Princeton, Colgate and Dartmouth.

Standout college hockey players like Capt. Johnny Pryor, Ray Chaisson, Al Dumond and Bob Mee, give the Boston College machine its tremendous power. Capt. Pryor, Chaisson and Dumond were one of the highest scoring college lines in the country last season.

Boston College should win tonight's affair, but it will have to go all out, for Northeastern has been pointing for this one since last winter.

EARL DEW TO RIDE IN KENTUCKY DERBY

SAC CITY, Ia., Jan. 7 (AP)—Earl Dew, the Iowa farm boy who saddled 287 winners to take the 1940 national jockey title, is near the realization of a life-long dream—to ride in the Kentucky Derby.

Home for a week's rest after a dramatic race with Walter Lee Taylor of Houston, Tex., for the national jockey crown, Dew disclosed today that he has been offered a contract by Warren Wright's Calumet Farms.

Wright owns Whirlaway, the leading two-year-old of 1940 and a winter book favorite to win the Kentucky Derby next May. Dew said he had other offers and would not make a decision for several weeks.

The young Iowan, son of a former jockey, has set a goal of 300 winners for 1941, just one shy of the all-time mark set in 1933 by Jackie Westrope.

During his stay at home Dew has been feted at various functions. Tuesday he appeared at a public reception in Des Moines with Bobby Feller, the Iowa farm kid who made good with the Cleveland Indians. Dew, who is 19, already is planning his retirement.

"I want to ride about three more seasons," he said. "By that time I'll have enough money to buy a farm and I'll come back here and settle down with my folks."

Dew's father estimated his son's earnings at $18,000 and added that Earl has been helping his folks ever since he rode his first winner at Omaha on May 28, 1938.

"I knew Earl was good all the time and would have been more surprised if he hadn't won the jockey title," said the elder Dew.

$1,000,000 Hub Bowl Asked for Football

A move to build a Boston "Bean Bowl" and put this city into big time football was launched today with filing of a petition in the State Senate for a $1,000,000 municipal stadium.

The sponsor, Sen. Robert L. Lee of Charlestown, proposed that the Senate authorize Boston to borrow $1,000,000 outside the debt limit for construction of a "Bean Bowl to seat at least 100,000 persons."

Hialeah Opening Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

A 63-day racing season has been scheduled at Havana, Cuba, opening Jan. 18 and running through March 30. Richard A. Leigh, Sr., general manager of the Oriental Park race track there, now in Miami in behalf of the track, said purses would range from $400 to $800. The smaller sums will be for races scheduled for Cuban-owned horses.

Florida fans are hepped up over tomorrow's opening of Hialeah, which will be featured by the 13th running of the $5000 added Hialeah Park Inaugural Handicap. Among the 25 nominees is the Le Mar stock farm's Many Stings, winner of the Widener and McLennan Memorial Handicap. He finished sixth in the six-furlong Inaugural last year.

A big rush to Moiland in the rich Santa Anita Handicap is reported by the Agua Caliente future book, but so far the price has been kept at 8 to 1 despite a couple of $1000 wagers and others for smaller amounts.

Elmer Crowther, the "ukelele kid," accepted the first mount of his career on Sun Kit last Saturday at Tropical. The Baltimore youngster is under contract to John Bainton, and whether or not he proves a success as a rider, he already has been acclaimed the best musician in the Miami riding fold. He broadcast over several Eastern radio stations before turning his attention to the jockey's trade.

Plans for a spring meeting at historic Fair Grounds in New Orleans are being held in abeyance while a syndicate of local men undertake to finance the purchase of the course for approximately a half-million dollars. An option was taken by Sylvester W. Labrot, Jr., William Helis and Anthony Pelleteri, and halted a proposed auction by a real estate firm.

Following the close of the Tropical Park meeting today, Racing Secretary Robert S. Shelley will travel to Narragansett to confer with President James E. Dooley of the Rhode Island track concerning the spring meeting there, then swing out to Chicago for a huddle with Arlington Park officials before returning to Miami.

Mythical King, one-time stake horse owned by B. F. Whitaker, is staging a comeback in Florida. The veteran gelding scored his second victory at Tropical Park yesterday by beating out the Tallyho Stable's Topee by a head in the mile-and-70-yard purse to pay $15.50 for $2. The track was sloppy from an all-night rain, keeping the time at 1:45 flat.

Vito Tamulis in Hospital With Pneumonia

Vito Tamulis, who has picked many a runner off base in his day, was picked off himself today—by Kid Pneumonia.

The young Philadelphia National League southpaw was stricken at his South Boston home and rushed to the Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain, where this afternoon his condition was reported as "comfortable."

Vito was the second member of his family to enter the hospital in the past 24 hours, for his brother was admitted yesterday, another victim of pneumonia.

Tamulis started his pitching career with Boston English high and went directly from high school to the New York Yankees farm system.

He had one big year with the Yanks, then was sent to the Browns and eventually waived to Brooklyn of the National League after he came down with an illness several seasons back.

He has been with Brooklyn for the past two seasons, and compiled a fine record there.

He was regarded highly by both Leo Durocher and Larry MacPhail but when they had a chance to grab the great Kirby Higbe from the Phillies last November they let Tamulis go with a bundle of cash for the pitcher.

NEW RULE TO CREATE GRID SHOW

ATLANTA, Jan. 7 (AP)—So you think you have trouble following the ball in modern football? Brother, take it from George Tech's veteran Bill Alexander, you're about to swap kindergarten for a three-ring circus.

Instead of only backs and ends toting the pigskin, as in the past, there'll be eleven potential ball-carriers every time those young collegians line up for a play.

It's that new rule, adopted by the National collegiate rules committee, allowing the ball to be handed forward to any player behind the line of scrimmage.

GANGWAY FOR TRICK PLAYS

Coach Alex, whose Yellowjackets have gained some measure of fame by befuddling opponents—and fans—with pigskin prestidigitation, observed today the change "opens up some possibilities" for fresh gridiron bamboozling by permitting centers, guards and tackles to carry the ball, as well as backs and ends.

"Under the old rules," he explained, "it wasn't specifically prohibited for a guard or tackle to carry the ball. But to do so he would have to pull out of the line and take it from behind the spinning back in a backward pass. That made it pretty impractical.

"Now the new rule permits the quarterback, for instance, to take the pass from center and poke it between the legs of the guard who, in turn, might double up and run with it, or sit on it, or do anything else he wanted to. Or the quarterback might use the trick Tennessee tried a few years ago, which then was called illegal, of taking the ball on the snap and passing it right back to the center, who would run with it."

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE DETROIT Red Wings, who will oppose the Bruins at the Garden tonight, have been playing brilliant hockey. They have won their last five games, and have earned a tie for first place with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

ART ROSS

The Bruins are in third place, and despite their large casualty list they are certain to give the visitors plenty of opposition.

Roy Connacher will return to the Bruins' lineup tonight, and will strengthen the club. Art Ross has also recalled Gordon Bruce and Pat McReavey from Hershey.

The Bruins suffered an additional loss when Milton Schmidt was obliged to go to Ontario, Canada, as a result of the death of his father. Schmidt will rejoin the Rossmen in Montreal on Saturday night.

I do not look for the Bruins to lose spirit even with so many of its regulars out of the game. The Bruins have a young club, and they fight all the harder when they experience tough breaks.

The arrival of the Red Wings here at the time when they are playing at the top of their game will also instill new life into the local hockey situation. The Red Wings have not shown to advantage in receent years, and did not compare with the Rangers as a card. Now that they are winning again the attendance at their Boston games is sure to pick up.

I think the public has had its share of football thrills, and is looking forward to enjoying some hockey fireworks.

Shucco Shows Punch Against Walker

EMERSON DAVIS, writing in the Ohio State Citizen at Columbus, Ohio, says Tony Shucco of Boston displayed a heavy punch as he stopped the long winning streak of Jack "Buddy" Walker of Columbus. Shucco dropped Walker to the canvas in the sixth round with a driving right hand punch to the stomach, followed by a left hook to the jaw. It was the first time in his career that included 32 bouts that an opponent ever succeeded in spilling Walker to the canvas.

Discussing the sixth round, Davis wrote:

"The fight, which was a slugfest of the wildest proportions after the first two rounds, hit its most exciting stages in the sixth when Shucco shot a right that landed flush on Walker's stomach. The blow scored just above the waistline. Shucco followed it with a left hook to the face that spun Walker around and sent him whirling into the ropes, with his head hanging over the ropes with one knee on the floor.

"Walker was groggy, and might have attempted to jump up and start fighting if his seconds had not talked him into staying down for the full nine count. He was still groggy when he reached his feet, but he managed to weather the round under a blistering attack of his opponent."

The decision was unanimous for Shucco. Up to the Shucco bout Walker had scored 19 victories by knockouts, but he was unable to catch up with Tony with a single well directed punch.

Earl Dew Owns His Own Contract

DAVE WILSON sent me the following items from Tropical Park, Coral Gables, Fla.:

"Earl Dew, who beat out Walter Taylor by a single winner in the race for the national jockey championship, owns his own contract and so can ride where he wishes . . . Dew has a simple ambition . . . He wants to earn enough money to buy his mother a home in Iowa, and to have enough in reserve to travel with his friend Earl Beezley who has a small racing stable. Beezley used to have a contract on Dew, but he later sold it to the talented young rider . . . When Jake (Candy Boy) Utkin celebrated his 27th birthday, Mickey Brooks surprised him with a free ride on the daily double . . . Boston visitors to Miami, Fla., may usually be found at Lou Walter's Latin Quarter Club which is doing a good business.

"There will be a grand opening at Hialeah Park on Wednesday . . . Charley McLennan has every barn filled, and most of the horses look as if they possess real ability . . . I look for a first class racing meeting . . . Tom Thorp has had a good meeting at Tropical Park . . . The Coral Gables track will hang up the shutters after Tuesday's racing until March."

JOHNNY ROGERS writes from Hollywood, Cal., that his English heavyweight, "Bomber" Harry Martin, continues to be the hottest ring attraction on the Coast . . . Martin is a good puncher, and his is one of the chief reasons he has such crowd appeal . . . Rogers says that Martin's bouts with Buddy Knox and Pat Valentino were sellouts.

"There is a heavyweight in the All-America diamond belt championships here who looks like the real thing," adds Rogers . . . "His name is Rodie O'Dooley . . . He originally came from Steamboat Springs, Col. . . . He then came to the Coast, and has shown well in local amateur tournaments . . . O'Dooley is his real name, and unless he gets a bad break he should be heard from in the ranks of the professionals within a couple of years . . . He is a great puncher, takes a good belt and is dead game.

ROCKLAND FIVE FACES WEYMOUTH

The South Shore basketball circuit is now well underway with all participants having played at least one game.

Coach Bill Erwin's Braintree High hoopsters were nipped 31 to 29 by a rough and ready North Quincy outfit. Gerard Clougherty, hard running halfback of football fame and now a high scoring forward, dropped a third of Braintree's scores through the North Quincy basket.

Co-Captain Paul Cheverie is also playing an excellent game.

Braintree reached the semi-finals in the Tech tourney last season.

Abington got off to a definitely left footed start in their initial contest of the season, losing to Plymouth High 37 to 15. Bernado and Pederzan, Plymouth forwards, gathered an even dozen points each, being the main reasons for Abington's one sided shellacking. Pastuzak, Stankawitz and Rice gathered 14 points among them for Abington. Head Mentor Dick Morey will throw his Abington Green and White array against Coyle tonight.

Hanover High, under Coach McBain, kept in the black ink in their primary game by trouncing Marshfield, 21 to 13. Talman and John Stoddard are really going to town for the lads from Hanover. James Weldon, assistant coach, was a former star and basketball captain at Tufts in 1938.

Rockland High, the South Shore basketball standout, copped two verdicts last week. Arigo LaTanzi's stalwarts won their opener, edging out highly touted North Quincy, 22 to 20. Two days later they topped Milton, 37 to 20.

The trio of Lawson, Scott and Whitney featured in the victories.

Due to a nervousness the Rocklandites did not reach their top form in the North Quincy tilt but in the Milton High game the boys were clicking and had an easy time swamping the visitors from the north.

This evening, at the Rockland High gym undefeated Rockland will tangle with a none too potent Weymouth squad.

Casey Depends On Kerry Flip

Steve Casey, former wrestling champion, will use his Kerry Flip freely when he attempts to regain the crown from The Angel tomorrow night in the main event of Promoter Paul Bowser's weekly tournament at the Boston Arena.

The Kerry Flip is a variation of the flying mare, but is much more deadly, especially as applied by Casey, the only wrestler who can work it right.

Casey makes no secret of the fact that he wants nothing further to do with The Angel's "bear-hug." He felt it once when The Angel took the title from him and Steve was not the same for a couple of weeks after.

The match is easily the highlight of the winter season.

In the semi-final, Joe Cox, the rough Kansan, tangles with Sammy Menacker of New York.

Preliminaries include Tommy O'Toole, the California Irishman vs. Joe Maynard of New York; Bibber McCoy of Cambridge vs. Abe Kashey, Syrian champion, and the Green Dragon, new mystery man, vs. Jim Casey, brother of the Crusher.

100 Honor Berba, Old Friend of John L.

Tony Berba, 75 years of age and a friend of the late John L. Sullivan, was tendered a dinner by 100 of his friends at Edward's restaurant. Mr. Berba has always been interested in athletics and in proper living, and is in splendid physical condition for a man of his years.

Asked who would win, John L. or Joe Louis, if these men had met when both were at their peak, Mr. Berba did not hesitate in replying:

"John L. inside of three rounds!"

'I Ride to Win!'

Jockey Taylor Tells Retirement Plans

(This is the sixth of a series of articles by Jockey Walter L. Taylor in which he reveals his riding secrets. Taylor recently lost the national jockey championship to Earl Dew by a single winner when he suffered an injury during the last day of the year while riding at Tropical Park.)

CHAPTER VI

By WALTER LEE TAYLOR

(As told to Dave Wilson and Toney Betts)

A jockey's life is so short—you're gosh-durn lucky if you last ten years—that folks begin to ask you what you're going to do when you retire before you even get set around a racetrack.

Well, sir, when I retire I want to go back to my home state of Texas and become a ranch owner. I hope I make enough out of race riding to catch myself a ranch as big as the King Ranch, which covers about five counties.

That's covering a lot of territory, and I don't suppose there's enough in race riding to own just a little part of a ranch like that. But Mr. and Mrs. Wyse are taking care of my money matters, and they are going to see that I retire with something to spare.

Too many jockeys, says Mr. Wyse, end up with nothing in the bank. Some become trainers and the rest just roam the racetracks as mutuel clerks or program boys or tipsters. I had enough of hard times selling papers, shining shoes and delivering grocery orders. Race riding is no soft pickings, and Mr. Wyse says a young man is a fool not to think of the future.

Jockeys are learning from the mistakes of the old-timers. We now have the Jockeys' Community Fund and Guild. It costs us 25 cents every time we ride a horse. That comes out of our fee—$25 for a winner; $10 for a loser—like the $2 and $1 fees for the valet and the agent.

The quarters go into the fund which pays for hospital bills of jockeys who get hurt, and we're trying to get insurance to cover all the jockeys in America.

Maybe I've been looking too far into the future. I should be telling of present plans. After that ding-dong stretch finish with Earl Dew and the fall I had at Tropical Park the last day of the year, I went to Texas for a short vacation and figured on catching up with the horses again at Hialeah Park.

I am still under contract to Mr. Wyse, and that contract stands until Dec. 27, 1941, when I will be 21 years old.

Owners of big stables have offered Mr. Wyse as high as $20,000 for my contract. He has refused to sell. That would mean $20,000 for Mr. Wyse and $20,000 a year for me with a big stable. I am leaving all my business to the fine Texas gentleman from my home town. If it wasn't for him I might still be shining shoes around Rockingham Park. Anything he does is all right. I'm just going to keep on riding horses, giving them the best that's in me; riding to the boss' orders. I'll go right out and force the pace on horses that like to run that way. I'll save that speed for the stretch on horses who run the other way. When whips and spurs are needed, I'll be using them, always in there riding, riding to win.

(There will be another installment of Jockey Taylor's "I Ride to Win" in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

TILDEN STEALS NET SHOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Alice Marble has embarked upon her career as a tennis professional, with the launching of a financial as well as an artistic success, but for your "buck-ten" fan, 47-year-old Big Bill Tilden still is the player who draws 'em through the turnstiles.

"Queen Alice" entered the play-for-pay game last night in Madison Square Garden by downing Mary Hardwick, England's best, 8—6, 8—6, despite ragged control. A surprisingly good crowd of 12,371 contributed to a gross gate of $25,614.50.

But, while the customers applauded politely and cheered virtually none at all for Miss Marble and Miss Hardwick, they went "all out" as Big Bill took the court and blew a 6—4, 6—3 decision to red-headed Don Budge in the companion feature. They kept right on roaring as Bill and Alice came through, 6—2, 5—7, 6—3, in the mixed doubles.

'Ice Follies' Comic Team Plays Dual Role of Producer-Actor

By SAM BROGNA

A lot in general has been written about the coming "Ice Follies of 1941" which opens its Hub stay next Monday at the Garden and continues through until the following Sunday but little has been mentioned on the part of the leading comedy team of the show.

In this case, the outstanding laugh furnishers not only are a part of what again is hailed as another colossal ice show but are co-owners of the amazing and leading figure skating carnival.

They are Eddie Shipstad and Oscar Johnson and, with Roy Shipstad, are the entire owners. Those who have taken in the past Follies spectacle know what the noted combine, comic skating team of Shipstad and Johnson can do. But for the late and new comers alike, what they are capable of doing and just what they will furnish throughout the entire week show would be interesting to know.

BEST TEAM IN COUNTRY

Eddie and Oscar are the Damon and Pythias of the figure skating world and are generally tabbed as the greatest comedy duo ever developed in the United States. This year, the two will be presented as a Southern Colonel with his Lady, Oscar the Colonel and Eddie the lady. The comic routine hits a new high in laugh provoking incidences.

Although the show is entering its fifth year, Johnson and E. Shipstad have been skating partners for more than a dozen years. Their careers began in St. Paul where the two were featured skaters with amateur skating carnivals.

At that time, figure skating and comedy making was far from their minds since both had regular jobs and used skating more or less as a sideline. The only time they appeared in shows was whenever a skating outfit came within striking distance of town and then they would get a leave of absence from their regular every day job.

NEVER SACRIFICE RHYTHM

Although Oscar and Eddie dreamed of having their own ice show many years, it wasn't until 1936 that they definitely decided to back to the limit their idea of a figure skating show. The first season was a decided hit and with each succeeding year, it has grown with additional interest and success in the many cities the Ice Follies show has appeared.

One of the high points of their skating is that while it is purely comedy in character, never once do they sacrifice rhythm or timing to put over a humorous situation. Their spills, falls, collisions or whatever else occurs during their presence on the ice, are all so beautifully timed that they fit in perfectly with the specialy arranged musical background.

PREDICTS K. O. WIN FOR NOVA

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (INS)—Ray Carlen today predicted that his fighter, Lou Nova, California heavyweight who is staging a comeback, would win by a knockout in his fight with Pat Comiskey, New Jersey heavyweight, in New York next Friday night.

Nova looked impressive in his five-round workoupt here.

Today, Promoter Mike Jacobs journeyed to Hackensack, N. J., to watch Comiskey stage his preparatory drills. The young Irishman was kayoed in one round by Max Baer last year in his "big league" start.

DIMAG TOP ROOKIE

DOM DiMAGGIO
Best Rookie of '40

Rewarded for his brilliant centerfield play, being named the outstanding rookie of 1940 by the Boston Baseball Writers' Association, Dominic DiMaggio, youngest of the great fly-chasing clan, has announced he will be on hand at the dinner of the scribes, Jan. 30, to accept the award.

Young Dom received the nod as most valuable by nosing out such standout players as Chet Ross and Bama Rowell, despite the fact he was unable to break into the regular Red Sox lineup until the season was well under way.

Dom's magnificent play in the stretch and his unexpected prowess at the plate decided the writers in his favor, and Dom will line up alongside veterans Johnny Cooney of the Bees and Jimmy Wilson, recently appointed Cubs' manager, when the honors are being distributed.

Cooney, the amazing Bees' veteran, was voted Boston's most valuable player of last season, while Wilson, hero of the Cincinnati Reds' World Series triumph, was named the player who turned in the most brilliant individual feat of the campaign.

Chas. O'Leary, Old Tiger Star, Dead at 68

CHICAGO, Jan. 7 (AP)—Charles T. O'Leary, 68, infielder on Detroit's championship baseball teams of 1907-08 and later coach under Miller Huggins and Rogers Hornsby, is dead here of peritonitis.

O'Leary broke into the big leagues in 1900 as a shortstop with the White Sox, but later was sent to Des Moines where he spent three years.

Detroit bought him in 1904, and he remained with the Tigers until 1909.

Then he slipped back into the minors where he spent several seasons, including a short time as manager of the Indianapolis club.

Miller Huggins hired him as a coach for the New York Yankees, and he stayed there through the regime of Manager Bob Shawkey.

BILL CORUM SAYS:

makes it compulsory for a player to run down field and catch his own passes.

Don't be too greatly surprised that when the 1940 shouting dies over the college stars of this Fall, and the 1941 shooting begins, Paul Christman will prove to be both the best touchdown and the best headline getter of the lot, provided he plays pro football, of course.

Paul May Be the Biggest

THE BOY IS more colorful than most, takes back for nothing, and has the winning competitive touch. As in the East-West game, he always has shown at his best when the spotlight was on him. He's the sort of kid that likes to travel with the bands.

About the other bowl games, every warm weather section of the country has one now and, it is my feeling, that four is an ample sufficiency. They were all successful and fortunate this time in weather, crowds and competition. It will not always be that way, a fact that any other group that may be looking enviously and covetously at the bowls, should keep in mind.

Also I think the time is near at hand when the conferences and colleges should appoint some sort of commission or committee to oversee and regulate these bowl games. They are run on a high plane now, and they should be kept on a high plane.

When run that way they are a good thing for all concerned and the nation as a whole. I'm quite sure that some of our Boston College boys, for example, have a new and better understanding of their country because of the Sugar Bowl trip.

In turn, they made a fine and manly showing that must have given the Louisiana folks a pleasant impression of Boston College. Let nobody tell you that such things are not important in our country, especially at this time.

HOOFING HOOSIERS RENEW TWO-MILE DUEL FOR V.F.W.

A couple of hoofing Hoosiers, Donald Ray Lash and Tommy Deckard, have forwarded their entries for Saturday night's two-mile trip around the Boston Garden track in the third annual V. F. W. meet, first of the winter circuit shows.

This will be a rubber race in these games between the Indiana graduates, for Deckard ignited a bomb in the meet two years ago and beat Lash after having shadowed him for the greater part of four years.

Lash evened the count last year by a thin yard, but failed to beat his thin contemporary's meet mark of 9m. 13.6s. which, incidentally, was made on a 12-lap track at East Armory as to the 11-lap Garden saucer.

The barrel-chested Lash was almost in complete eclipse last year after ruling the distance runs for three of four seasons. He was beaten in eight of his 11 indoor starts and dropped his mantle of supremacy to J. Gregory Rice, mincing-strided Notre Damer, and also his world indoor record to that tiny challenger.

Only thrice in nine tries was Lash able to stop Rice and one of those occasions was the V. F. W. event. And the local games committee will have Rice in Saturday's sizzler if the little South Bend accountant can get away from his desk.

Lash will be the man to beat. He is in the grandest condition of his career. The State trooper from Bloomington prepared arduously for a 1941 comeback in cross-country and cleaned up the hill-and-dale titles in his regional race and the A. A. U., beating Rice in both starts.

Durable Don won his seventh consecutive national cross-country title in November, whipping Rice by 350 yards on the sleet and snow covered Detroit course in November and walloping the national record with a 30 m. 25.83s. performance.

Dad Butler, veteran Detroit trainer, has seen all the great American distance runners of the past three decades and Lash many times, but he claimed after the A. A. U. run that he had never seen the equal of Lash's performance.

The Hoosier trooper never alibied a race in his life, but all his intimates knew a year ago that between his police duties and his graduate work at Indiana he did not have sufficient time to prepare for an opponent of Rice's tremendous ability.

But this year Lash has grimly prepared to fight his way past the chunky Notre Dame graduate and regain the several records and championships he lost to Rice.

This will be Lash's 11th two-mile race in this city. He has won six of 10, the most notable the Boston A. A. event in 1937 when he brought the world board-track record down to 8m. 58s. Rice has since whittled that to 8m. 56.2s.

Ring Monopoly Probe Sought By Promoters

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7 (INS)—U. S. Sen. Harold H. Burton today was asked by Robert Brickman and Ben Goetz, fight promoters, to institute a congressional investigation of what they claimed was "a monopoly on boxing held by Promoter Mike Jacobs in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law."

Brickman and Goetz have signed Melio Bettina and Anton Christoforidis to a 15-round bout in Cleveland, Jan. 13, for the National Boxing Association's light heavyweight title. The winner would be recognized as titleholder in 34 states.

Jacobs threatened to sue the Cleveland promoters if they insisted on billing the Bettina-Christoforidis match as a championship bout.

Hoppe Leads Way In Billiard Test

Hoppe ran out his string of 60 points in 39 innings, while Schaefer, playing far below his usual form, scored only 28 points.

B. C. Grid Fete Postponed

The Boston College Varsity Club football dinner, scheduled for a week from tomorrow night, has been postponed because of the proximity of mid-year examinations and also because the Sugar Bowl authorities would be unable to be present at that time.

The new date will be announced shortly.

Bouts Postponed Due to Sickness

After receiving word from several boxers asking to be excused from taking part in the second series of tryouts for the Diamond belt championships at the Arena last night because of grippe and colds, George Freeman of the Irish-American A. A. postponed the bouts until Jan. 20.

The decision to postpone the tournament was made shortly before ring time, when only a handful of scrappers were on hand to participate.

Fans who had already made their way into the St. Botolph st. arena were disappointed when the announcement was made.

The next big amateur boxing offering on Boston's sports calendar will be presented at the Arena next Monday night when Gene Driscoll and his New England A. A. A. U. Boxing Committee stage the annual Massachusetts state championships.

Sullivan Lost To Olympics

The Olympics may be without the services of Dan Sullivan this Thursday and Friday when they entertain both the Washington Eagles and Baltimore Orioles at the Garden.

The former Dartmouth great, who has aided the Pics immensely during their drive this past month, sustained a bad knee twist last Saturday night and it is unlikely that he will be available for at least a week.

A new rookie will be introduced to local fans Thursday night in the Washington game. He is Ray McCarthy, up from the Junior ranks. The recruit played in Baltimore Sunday night and gave plenty of promise.
